German Development Cooperation is hosting this panel discussion during the Law, Justice and Development Week to facilitate knowledge sharing among rule of law practitioners. French, German and Japanese development organizations will present their experiences and findings from projects in Bangladesh, Lebanon, Mexico, Serbia and Vietnam.

Shaping a 'science of delivery'

This event will bring together practitioners working on rule of law projects in various legal, cultural and regional contexts. Experts will share their experiences and innovative approaches on how cooperation partners can achieve successful delivery.

Representatives from French, German and Japanese development organizations will present approaches and develop common parameters for successful delivery.

Participants are cordially invited to join the experts for an after-session reception in order to further engage in discussions with the panelists. Information material on justice and legal reform around the world will be available.
