"N. Korean Refugee Report" Published in Seoul
Konrad Adenauer Foundation to Celebrate Its Publication

By Karen Kim
Staff Reporter

"North Korean Refugee Report," story of the first-hand accounts of refugees from Communist North Korea, is aimed at increasing awareness for the current situation of the North Korean refugees in South Korea.

In this book both North Korean refugees and renowned experts on North Korean issues share their personal view and insights.

Through the book they make suggestions for the problems rising from the North Korean refugees and the related issues.

They argue that refugees from North Korea should be successfully integrated into South Korea. Their successful integration can serve as an important step towards peaceful unification between North and South Korea.

They also demand that necessary measures be taken for the North Korean refugees as their number in South Korea is steadily increasing.

To celebrate the publication of "North Korean Refugee Report" a reception will be hosted by Konrad Adenauer Foundation Korea on April 30, 2009.
