What defines us – what unites us

“What defines us – what unites us” is the name of a comic film and book series produced by the Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung. This series deals in a simple and practical way with the central values of our society. The topics human dignity, equal rights, freedom of expression, freedom of religion and the main pillars of our foreign policy are covered. Through this project we wish to invite the broad public to engage in a reflection about what defines us in Germany and what unites our society.

Germany has learned from its violent past.

United Nations Declaration of Human Rights

Therefore the individual person and the protection of human dignity not only stand in the center of the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights ...

GRUNDGESETZ

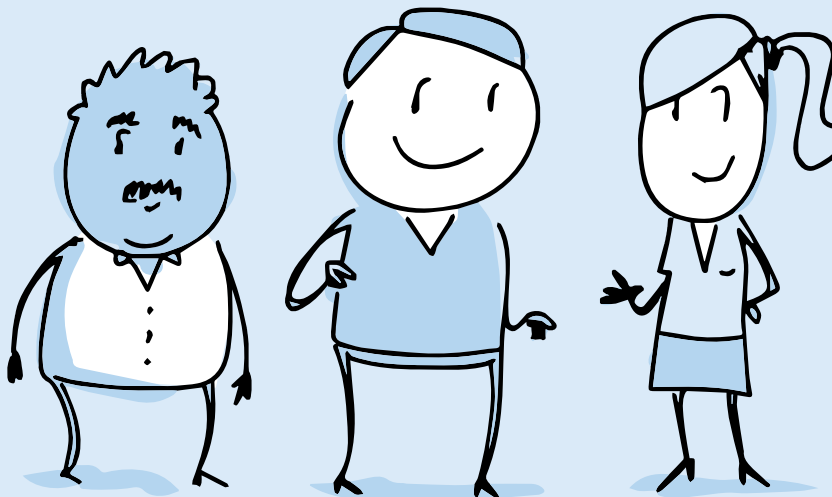

Article 1 says:
“Human dignity shall be inviolable.
To respect and protect it shall be the duty
of all state authority.”

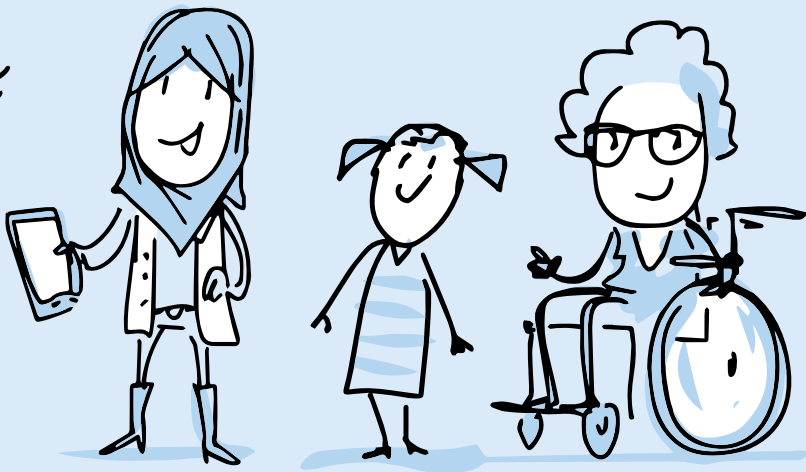

Human dignity
shall be inviolable.

To respect and protect it shall be the duty of all state authority.

This means that the state has to protect all citizens ...

... from government and societal injustice.

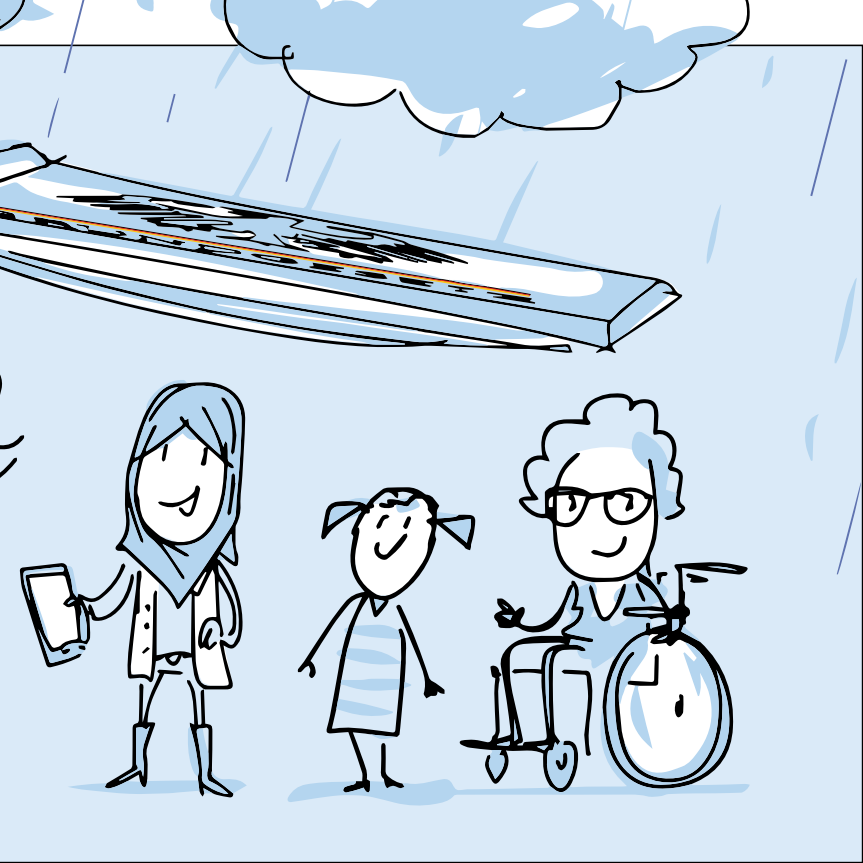

Respect, esteem, support and protection is equally valid for all people in Germany – independent of origin, birth, gender, age or physical condition.

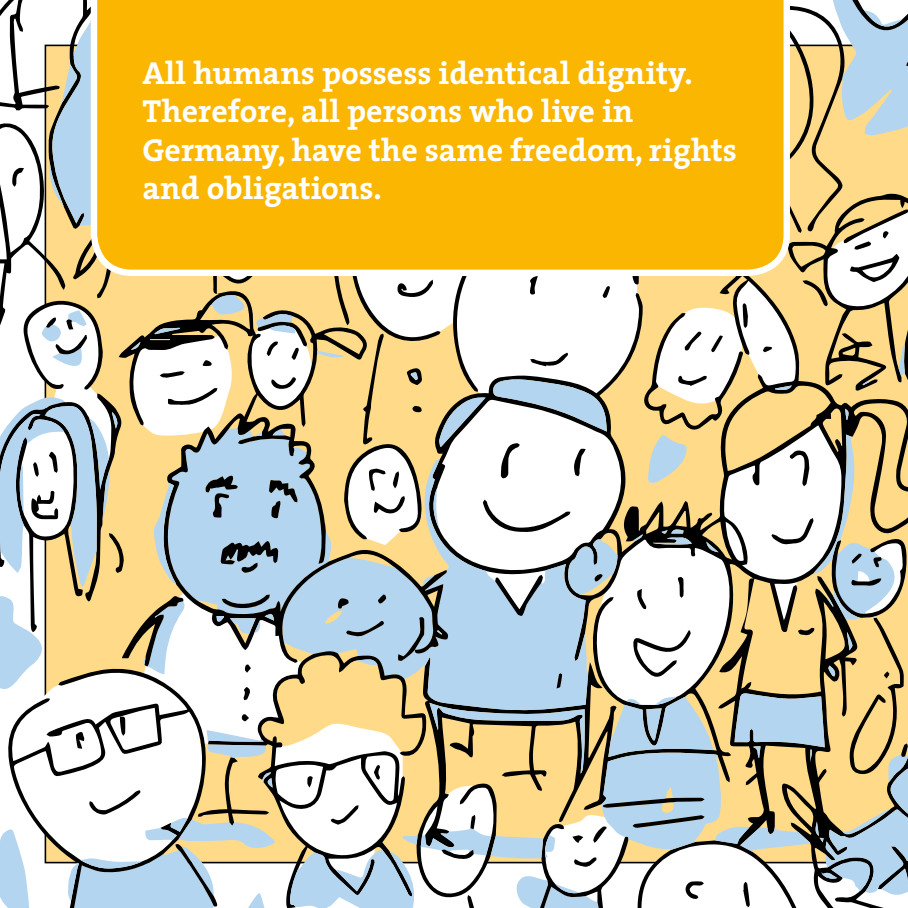

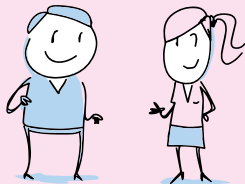

But not only the state abides to this principle. It is obligatory to all to adhere to the golden rule.

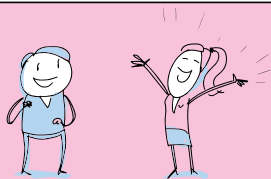

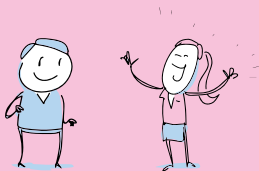

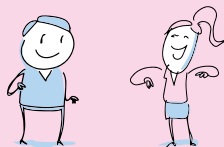

All humans possess identical dignity.
Therefore, all persons who live in Germany, have the same freedom, rights and obligations.

In Germany the right to live, the right to freedom and the right to a free development of personality are guaranteed.

Men and women have equal rights.
