

DDP PUBLIC FORUM

Democracy Development Program invites you to a public forum to engage on the Economic Policy document released for public comment by Treasury.

According to treasury, the paper "is an attempt to translate the broad outcomes of inclusive growth, economic transformation, and competitiveness into specific programs and draw on a range of domestic and international literature to support these policy priorities. This paper considers the contribution of specific growth reforms that can achieve the outcomes of economic transformation, inclusive growth, and competitiveness."

We convene this conversation to gauge how effectively the policy document addresses the core needs of our society, particularly with significant rates of unemployment and poor economic growth that are currently confronting our country.

As part of our panel, the Finance Ministry will be represented, including an economist with one of the country's foremost commercial banks.

Join us for the conversation, and make your voice heard towards engaging with our country's economic hurdles.
