

EcoPeace Middle East and Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung's Regional Program Energy Security and Climate Change Middle East and North Africa (KAS - REMENA) would like to invite you to be part of an important conversation.

Does Anyone Still Care About Saving the Dead Sea?

Thursday 12 November, 2020, 4pm Jerusalem time
Register here

Speakers

EcoPeace Directors: Gidon Bromberg, Nada Majdalani, Yana Abu Taleb

Researchers: Amanda Lounsbury (Tel Aviv University), Revital Bookman (Haifa University)

Prof. Michael Hanemann (renowned resource economist, Arizona State University, USA)

The event will also include the launch of a new report -
“Desk Study on the Opportunities and Implications of Releasing
Treated Effluent in the Lower Stretches of the Jordan River and Dead Sea”.

Agenda:

16:00 Welcome:

Daniela Diegelmann, Head of KAS - REMENA

Yana Abu Taleb, Jordanian Director, EcoPeace

16:05 The ecological demise of the Dead Sea and the geopolitical context.

Nada Majdalani, Palestinian Director, EcoPeace

16:15 Past efforts to save the Dead Sea - Where do we stand today?

Gidon Bromberg, Israeli Director, EcoPeace

16:25 Desk Study on the Opportunities and Implications of Releasing Treated Effluent in the Lower Stretches of the Jordan River and Dead Sea

Dr. Revital Bookman (Haifa University) & Ms Amanda Lounsbury (Tel Aviv University).

16:45 How much should the mineral extraction industry in Israel and Jordan be paying for waters extracted from the Dead Sea?

Prof. Michael Hanemann, renowned resource economist, Arizona State University, USA.

17:00 Questions and Discussion: Moderated by Yana Abu Taleb, Jordanian Director, EcoPeace

17:15 Close