Introduction

Introduction to the 2021 local elections

The seventh consecutive local elections since the independence of the Republic of North Macedonia will be held on 17 October, 2021. The President of the Assembly, within his legal competencies, announced the local elections on 6 August, 2021.¹ Mayors and councilors of 80 municipalities and the City of Skopje will be elected at the elections.

During the last term of the local self-government, from October 2017 to October 2021, most of the mayoral seats, 57, belonged to the coalition led by the Social Democratic Union of Macedonia (SDSM). The Democratic Union for Integration (DUI) won 10, and the coalition led by VMRO-DPMNE won 5 mayoral seats. The Alliance for Albanians (A/A) won three mayoral seats, one mayor was elected from the Democratic Party of Turks in Macedonia (DPPT), the Democratic Party of Albanians and the BESA party each. Three mayoral seats went to independent candidates.

The coalition led by SDSM won the largest number of council seats, i.e., 552. VMRO-DPMNE won 430 council seats, DUI – 127, while BESA and the political party Alliance for Albanians won 63 councilor seats each. The Democratic Party of Albanians won 23 council seats, the Democratic Party of Turks – 17, the Union of Roma from Macedonia and the People's Movement of Macedonia – 7 seats each, the coalition DUI, A/A, and BESA won 4 seats,² while GROM, the Movement for National Unity of Turks and the Left party won 3 council seats each. The coalition Alliance for Albanians (led by Uniteti), the coalition Better Future and the PDP won one seat each. The independent councillor lists won a total of 37 council seats.³

The process of conducting the local elections in 2021 began with determining the date for the elections, which according to the Electoral Code is scheduled to take place in the second week of October, given that the election campaign would partially coincide with the census in September 2021. The dilemma was whether the partial overlap of the election campaign and the census may disrupt the conduct of the census. However, the political parties decided to hold the elections in accordance with the legally prescribed deadline, i.e., in the second half of October. In parallel, negotiations were initiated to change the Electoral Code in March 2021. The negotiations took place between representatives of the Ministry of Justice and representatives of SDSM, VMRO-DPMNE, DUI and the Alliance for Albanians. After several months of negotiations, several novelties in the Electoral Code were agreed. One of the key changes is voting using special voter fingerprint verification devices (fingerprint terminals). This device will determine whether the voter has previously voted or has mistaken the polling station. The initiative for this solution originally came from VMRO-DPMNE in order to increase confidence in the election process and reduce the possibility of abuse.

Later in the run-up to the elections, there was considerable discussion about the proposal of the parliamentary parties SDSM, VMRO-DPMNE, DUI and the Alliance for Albanians / Alternative to increase the threshold for submitting a candidacy for mayor or councillor list, i.e., to increase the threshold of 2% of the total number of voters in the municipality. In some areas, this would mean a significant increase in the number of signatures to be collected, for example if submitting a list for the City of Skopje so far required 1000 signatures, with the new agreed changes, the submitters would need to collect 9000 signatures. The proponents justified the proposal as an obligation related to the OSCE / ODIHR recommendations. The proposed changes initiated a great debate in the public with reactions from smaller political parties, contenders for independent candidates and the civic sector. The reactions were that such a solution is exclusively in the interest of the larger parties and they could significantly complicate the initiatives of several associations and individuals for independent lists. President Stevo Pendarovski backed the initiatives of independent councillor lists, and said he would veto changes to the Electoral Code if they are passed in the Assembly.⁴ According to President Pendarovski, it is illogical 10,000 signatures to be needed for candidacy for President of the country, and a similar number to be needed for councillors in the City of Skopje. Additionally, Pendarovski pointed out that the changes should not be made immediately before the elections. After a series of criticisms, the Prime Minister and President of SDSM, Zoran Zaev, announced that the agreed proposal would be withdrawn.⁵

A typical feature of these elections is the number of independent candidacies for mayors and municipal councillors. At the initiative of a group of citizens, 27 candidacies for mayors and 65 lists for councillors were submitted. In as many as 18 municipalities there will be at least one independent candidate for mayor. There are three independent candidates for mayors in the municipalities of Makedonska Kamenica and Chucher Sandevo, and two independent candidates in the municipality of Ilinden.

Preparations for the 2021 local elections

Following the decision for announcing the 2021 local elections signed by the President of the Assembly of the Republic of North Macedonia, Talat Xhaferi, the State Election Commission (SEC) adopted the Schedule for conducting the election activities for the implementation of the local elections.

In accordance with the Schedule,⁶ the SEC is obliged to establish the Municipal Election Commissions (MECs) after the mandate of the previous commission expires. After being established, the MEC forms the Election Boards (EBs) and complements the members and deputy members whose mandate has been terminated on various grounds. MECs file a request to the political parties in opposition that won the most votes in the last elections, and the ruling political parties that won the most votes in the last elections, to submit proposals for EB members and their deputies in order to form the EB, which should be submitted by 1 September at the latest.

According to the Electoral Code, immediately after the announcement of the elections, the SEC files a request to the Ministry of Interior (MOI) to submit data on the citizens. The Ministry of Interior should submit the data that must contain the Unique Identification Number of the Citizen (EMBG) to the SEC within 48 hours at the latest. Then, the State Election Commission, no later than 15 days from the day of announcing the elections, puts the Voters List on public display in its regional departments and offices, as well as on the website izbirackispisok.gov.mk where the voter can enter his/her personal data to check if he/she is on the Voters List, and if so, at which polling station he/she votes and where it is located. In these elections, the inspection of the voter list started on 21 August and ended on 9 September at midnight. All requests for registration, addition or deletion of data in the Voters List, were to be submitted in the period from 21 August to 9 September. The State Election Commission then submits it to the political parties within five days (i.e., no later than 14 September) after the completion of the public inspection of the Voters List⁷. After this, the parties, within five days from the submission, i.e., until 19 September, file requests to the SEC for registration, addition or deletion of data.

The Ministry of Interior is obliged, within one day from the end of the public inspection of the Voters List, i.e., on 10 September, to submit a list of citizens who have filed a request for issuance of a new ID card or passport on any grounds, and had them collected in the period between the day of announcing the elections until the day of completion of the public inspection, as well as the list of persons who have turned 18 by the day of the elections. The SEC enters the data on these persons in the Voters List ex officio.

The body responsible for the execution of sanctions, no later than 30 days before the day set for the elections, submits data on the persons who are in custody or are serving a prison sentence on the basis of the records kept by this body to the SEC. The data contain a magnetic medium and must contain the unique personal identification number of the citizen. These data are submitted no later than 16 September.

The Ministry of Labour and Social Policy (MLSP) shall submit data on the persons who have registered to vote in out-of-home care facilities to the State Election Commission no later than 30 days before the day set for the elections, on the basis of their own records and on the basis of the data submitted by the persons in charge in the out-of-home care institutions. no later than 16 September.

The SEC concludes the Voters List in which all changes made from the public inspection have been registered, printed in the form of excerpts, no later than 15 days after the completed public inspection, i.e., no later than 24 September. Then, the SEC signs the concluded Voters List, i.e., the excerpts from the Voters List, which are voted on no later than 15 days before the day of the elections, i.e., no later than 1 October.

The political parties submitted their candidate lists for the local elections by midnight on 11 September, when the deadline for submitting candidacies for mayors and councillor lists to the SEC expired, i.e., 35 days before the elections. By the deadline, 297 candidacies for mayors were submitted, including the candidacies of independent candidates. The deadline for collecting signatures for independent candidates was 30 August.

According to the Schedule, the financial reports of the election campaign organizers are submitted to the SEC, the State Audit Office (SAO) and the State Commission for Prevention of Corruption (SCPC) within the following deadlines:

- » The participant in the election campaign is obliged to submit a report on the specification of the revenue expenditures, including the expenses of the transaction account for the election campaign from the day of its opening until the end of the first election round, within 20 days from the day of the election silence for the first round, i.e., 4 November until midnight, and the second round of voting on 18 November until midnight, if it is held.
- » The participant in the election campaign is obliged to submit a report on the 11th day of the day of the election campaign, i.e., 7 October, by midnight, by filling in a form for the received donations on the transaction account as specified in the Electoral Code for financing the election campaign.
- » The participant is obliged to submit a report by filling in a form for the received donations on the transaction account, one day after the end of the election campaign, i.e., on 16 October for the first round, and on 30 October for the second round, as stipulated in the Electoral Code for financing the election campaign.
- » One day before the second round of voting, the participant is obliged to submit a Report by filling in a form for the received donations on the transaction account for financing the election campaign.
- » The participant in the election campaign is obliged, immediately, and no later than 30 days from the day of the announcement of the final results, to submit a total financial report for the specification of the expenses for the incomes and the expenses during the election campaign.
- » The State Audit Office is obliged to conduct an audit within 60 days from the submission of the report.

The report is submitted no later than 15 days after the end of the election campaign, i.e., on 30 October at midnight for the first round, and on 13 November at midnight for the second round.

Participants in the elections

In the local elections, 24 political entities appear individually or in a coalition as submitters of candidate lists for mayors. A typical feature of these elections is the large discrepancy between male and female candidates. The most candidacies were submitted by the coalition led by SDSM - 69 of which 5 women. From the larger parties, VMRO - DPMNE with its coalition nominated 63 candidates, of which 3 women. DUI nominated 19 candidates for mayors, of which only one is a woman. The Besa movement nominated 11 candidates, none of whom are women, while the DPA nominated 14 candidates, one of whom is a woman. The Coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative is running with 15 candidates, without any female candidates, while the Coalition "Movement determined for change" with 18 candidates, of which 5 are women. The Left party is running with eight candidates, two of whom are women, Integra - Macedonian Conservative Party with 10 candidates one of whom is a woman, Permanent Macedonian Radical Unification (TMRO) with nine candidates, two of whom are women candidates, the political party Democrats, Workers and Independents, with six candidates without any female candidate, and the party Macedonian Third Era / Macedonian Independent Lists is running with seven candidates, one of whom is a woman. The Democratic Party of the Turks of Macedonia is running with 5 male candidates, and the Bosniak Democratic Union with four male candidates. The Party of United Democrats of Macedonia - PODEM has three male candidates, while the Rodina Makedonija (Homeland Macedonia) party has two male and one female candidates. "Your Party" is running with two candidates, and the parties Alternative, ROM - Romeske, the Communist Party of Macedonia - Tito's forces, the Movement for National Unity of the Turks - DNET, the Movement for Democracy, Rights and Freedom and the Civic Option for Macedonia - GROM, are running with one candidate each, all of whom are men. A total of 25 candidacies for mayors were submitted by a group of voters, two of whom are women. Out of a total of 299 candidates for mayors, only 25 are women (i.e., 8.41% of the total number of participants). The situation is different with the candidates for councillors, where out of a total of 10,635 candidates for councillors, 45% are women, largely as a result of the condition that every third candidate on the proposed lists should be of the underrepresented gender.

Recent changes in the election legislation

In the period from the last local elections in 2017 to the elections scheduled for 17 October, 2021, several new laws and amendments to the existing legislation were adopted. In the past period, several changes were made regarding the provisions of the Electoral Code. The changes are related to the state election bodies, the financing of the political campaign, the participants in the campaign, as well as the legal provisions of the Law on Audio-visual Media Services and the adoption of the Law on Prevention of Corruption and Conflict of Interest.

The Electoral Code in 2021 was amended twice in April and September 2021. The amendments regulated the manner of voting with and without the use of technical equipment and regulated the manner of determining the identity of the voter in the voting procedure with fingerprints.⁸ Additionally, the deadlines related to the procedure for protection of the right to vote were changed and the manner of voting in a pandemic was determined. Starting with these elections, the submitters of a list or candidacy can withdraw it within 48 hours from the adopted decision for final lists (Article 67 paragraph 12 of the Electoral Code), which is adopted no later than September 18. When it comes to withdrawing the candidate list, it can only be withdrawn in its entirety.⁹

Voting using technical equipment and the election process during a pandemic

The amendments to the Electoral Code of 2021 supplemented the content of the voter list with fingerprints and a special bar code for identification with fingerprints. Citizens who have been completely deprived of their work capacity by a final court decision or partially deprived of their work capacity by a final court decision, and the court has determined that the person does not have the ability to express legally relevant will in elections, will not be registered in the Voters List. With the latest amendments to the Electoral Code, persons who are in custody or serving a prison sentence have the opportunity to check their data during the public inspection of the Voters List. The SEC, within 3 days after the completion of the public inspection, is obliged to submit the voters list to the political parties that have previously filed an electronic request.

Additionally, the Ministry of Interior, besides the previously determined data in Article 43, should submit a photo and fingerprints of all adult citizens to the SEC. The Ministry of Interior submits the data after announcing elections or a referendum.

⁸ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 74/2021

⁹ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 215/2021

The amendments regulated the manner of determining the identity of the voter. Article 108-a explains the procedure for establishing identity in detail. The Electoral Board verifies the identity of the voters through a valid ID card or a valid passport, i.e., an ID card or passport which has expired in the period from the announcement of the elections to the day of their holding, as well as with a fingerprint.¹⁰ A voter may not vote if he / she does not have an identification document and if the fingerprint does not match the fingerprint in the electronic voters list. If the voter has already voted, the technical equipment informs about it, and that person will not be allowed to vote. If the biometric identification device does not match the fingerprint with the fingerprint available in the electronic voters list, and the electoral board established the voter's personal identity through a valid identification document, and if it is confirmed that no previous vote has been done, the voter is registered in the device by entering the unique identification number (EMBG).¹¹

The verification of the voter's identity is performed without technical equipment in cases when the voter is a sick or infirm person, is in a family care facility, or is serving a prison sentence.

A new Article 111-b was added to the Electoral Code, which deals with the electoral process in a time of pandemic. Persons who are in home quarantine or self-isolation can exercise their right to vote one day before the first round, i.e., 16 October, and 30 October if there is a second round. They are expected to inform the Municipal Election Commission, i.e., the Election Commission of the City of Skopje five days before the day set for voting.¹²

The Municipal Election Commissions collect the data from the State Sanitary and Health Inspectorate, which is obliged to submit the data 24 hours after the submitted request.

The SEC sets up special election boards composed of three health professionals who conduct the voting, with political parties being able to appoint a member to the special election board.

The Ministry of Health provides the necessary protective equipment for the members of the election bodies, and if the space provided for voting does not meet the requirements, the SEC may designate another suitable space that meets the conditions for voting in a pandemic.

Changes in the deadlines for protection of the right to vote

In September 2021, the deadlines regarding the procedure for protection of the right to vote were changed (Articles 149 and 149-a). The deadline for submitting a complaint to the Municipal Election Commission for violation of the personal right to vote in the voting procedure is 12 hours, and for violation of the right to vote in each phase of the election process is 48 hours. Complaints are submitted to the SEC by e-mail, in person or through an authorized representative.

The first instance body has two hours to make a decision after receiving the objection. The amendments change the deadline after which the SEC can file a lawsuit to the Administrative Court, which is 12 hours after receiving the decision. The Administrative Court is obliged to act upon the lawsuit within 2 hours after its receipt. Additionally, the Electoral Code provides for the possibility of a lawsuit against the decision of the SEC. In that case, the lawsuit is submitted to the Administrative Court within 48 hours after receiving the decision.

State Election Commission

With the amendments to the Electoral Code in 2018, changes were made in the article that regulates the work of the State Election Commission, additional changes in this article were made in February 2020, and in April and September 2021.

With the latest amendments to the Electoral Code, the State Election Commission is obliged to adopt detailed instructions on the manner and procedure of verifying the identity of voters and checking whether the voter has previously voted by reading the fingerprint with the technical equipment, as well as instructions on the manner of storage, processing and data deletion. Fingerprint data from the Voters' List should be deleted within 10 days after the announcement of the final election results. In cases when the technical equipment is unusable and cannot be replaced, the SEC, in accordance with Article 108-b of the Electoral Code, may decide that the identification be performed without the use of a biometric identification device.¹³

At the request of a member of the commission, the SEC is obliged to inspect the entire election material at the polling station where the voting has taken place by entering the unique identification number in the biometric identification device, and not by matching between the fingerprint, only if in that way voted:

¹³ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 74/2021

- » 5% of the registered voters in the Voters List in Polling Stations with up to 200 voters,
- » 3% of the registered voters in the Voters List in Polling Stations from 201 to 500 voters and
- » 2% of the registered voters in the Voters List in Polling Stations with over 500 voters.

If the number of voters is higher, the SEC is obliged to compare their fingerprints with the fingerprints of all other voters who voted like them, and with the fingerprints of other voters in the electronic Voters List at the state level.

With the additions to Article 26, the SEC now has a total of seven members in a certain composition: President, Vice President and five members of the Commission. The mandate of the members of the Commission starts from the day of election, and lasts five years until the election of the next composition of the State Election Commission. The conditions to be met by the members of the SEC are prescribed by the amendments to Article 27 of the Electoral Code.

With the changes from 2018 and 2021, any citizen of the Republic of North Macedonia with permanent residence in the country can be elected for these positions, with completed higher education, and at least eight years of work experience, provided they are not members of a political party. The Macedonian Parliament, 30 days before the expiration of the mandate, publishes the Announcement for election of the President, the Vice President and the members of the SEC in the "Official Gazette", as well as in the daily press. The announcement lasts for eight days from the day of its publication in the "Official Gazette". The procedure for election of members is prepared and implemented by the Committee on Elections and Appointments within the Assembly. This Commission prepares a draft list of the registered candidates and submits it to the Assembly. Of the candidates on the draft list, the opposition is proposing a president and two members, while the ruling parties are proposing a vice president and three members. In case of change of the political parties in opposition or the political parties in power, the Assembly harmonizes the composition of the SEC so that the political parties that have passed from power to opposition are obliged to submit to the Assembly a proposal for a SEC chairman from among the current members, and a proposal for termination of office before the expiration of the term of one of the members proposed by them. The parties that have passed from the opposition to the government submit to the Assembly a proposal for a vice-president of the SEC from among the members in the current composition and one member, for which the Assembly announces the election of one member of the SEC. All members are elected by a two-thirds majority of the total number of Members of Parliament. Amendments have been made in Article 28 of the Electoral Code, in the part of the conditions for termination of the function of members of the SEC. With the changes, termination may occur:

- » By force of law;
- » After harmonization of the composition of the SEC by the Assembly, in case of change of the political parties in opposition or in power.
- » At their personal request;
- » Due to unprofessional and negligent performance in the position;
- » Due to fulfilling the conditions for full retirement determined by law;
- » Due to death; and
- » If he / she has been sentenced to imprisonment of more than six months.

With a two-thirds majority vote of the total number of members, the SEC may submit a proposal to the Committee on Elections and Appointments of the Assembly, for dismissal of its member due to unprofessional and negligent performance in the position. Regarding the SEC, there are changes in Article 29, which refers to the deadline for nominating members of this body. In accordance with this article, the President of the Assembly informs the political parties to submit their proposals for president and two members (for the opposition), i.e., vice-president and three members of the SEC (for the ruling parties) within three days. If the opposition and the ruling parties do not exercise the right to nominate candidates, then the candidates will be nominated by the Committee on Elections and Appointments of the Assembly.¹⁴

The same deadline of 3 days for reporting to political parties remains in case of change of political parties in opposition or in power, where the parties, in accordance with the law, nominate a president, vice president from among the existing members, and one member of the SEC. Consequently, 30 days after the harmonization of the composition of the SEC, a new Secretary General is elected for the remaining period of the five-year term.¹⁵

The amendments made to the Electoral Code in February 2020 add an additional paragraph 34-i, which emphasizes that the opinion of the member of the SEC who voted against a decision or who believes that it should be based on other legal and factual grounds can be excepted. The excepted opinion should be explained in writing and be attached to the decision of the State Election Commission.

¹⁴ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 99/2018

¹⁵ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 215/2021

With the latest amendments, it has been decided to cancel and repeat the voting if the electoral board does not conduct the voting in accordance with the Electoral Code, and the irregularities affect the voting procedure, as well as in cases where there is a discrepancy between the number of fingerprints of the voters with the number of the ballots in the box.

Financing of political parties

In July 2018, the Parliament adopted the amendments regarding the financing of political parties. The Law on Financing of Political Parties has been amended in several provisions regarding the specification of property and the financing of political parties (movable and immovable property). These changes determine the amount of total funds for annual funding of political parties which is 0.15% of the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia, then determine the private sources of funding, the amount of individual donations that must not exceed the amount of 60 average salaries, as a donation from legal entities, and 30 net average salaries, if it is a donation from individuals. 30% of the funds for financing political parties provided from the Budget are distributed equally to all political parties that won at least 1% of the total number of votes in the last parliamentary or local elections. While 70% of the funds are distributed to political parties according to the number of elected members of Parliament in the last parliamentary elections and the number of elected councillors in the last local elections. Regarding the control over the financing of political parties, Article 26 of the Law has also been supplemented with several paragraphs, which emphasize the possibility for political parties to have only one bank account, and in case of financing by providing funds through loans from commercial banks, in addition to the basic bank account of the party, it may have another separate bank account for the party funds provided through loans. Moreover, the political party has the right to transfer funds between its accounts, while the party research-analytical centres (PIAC) have a separate account. Funds from the state budget in the amount of 280,000 euros in denar counter-value are provided for annual funding of PIAC, which are established in accordance with the law as part of the internal organization of the party.¹⁶

¹⁶ The party research-analytical centres were established by the Law on Party Research-Political Centres from 2013. They can employ at least two people. This Law stipulates that funds allocated for these centres can be given to the four political parties with the largest number of MPs in the Assembly, which have established such a centre ("Official Gazette", Law on Party-Research Centres, 23/2013 with amendments, 15/2015)

Furthermore, the amendments to the Law have created an obligation to submit a financial report for material-financial operations of the party, which contains the financial operations of the account, i.e., the accounts of the political party. The amendments, as an additional part of the financial report, recognize the items "sponsorship" and "loan". The amendments envisage the funds intended for financing the political parties to be paid in accordance with the budget possibilities, but not later than 1 March of each current year.¹⁷

Together with the Law on Financing of Political Parties, the Electoral Code has been amended in the part of raising funds for financing the political campaign, where a new paragraph (paragraph 7) has been added in Article 71. In addition to this paragraph, political parties may transfer funds from the basic account into the transaction account opened for the purposes of campaign financing. With the last amendments from September 2021, paragraph 8 of the same article was changed, which refers to non-submission or non-confirmation of the list of candidates. In such a case, the political entities that have secured a taxpayer identification number – TIN (EDB) and opened a transaction account have the responsibility to return the unspent donations to the donors in proportion to the donated amount within 15 days, and are obliged to close the transaction account intended for election campaign within 45 days from the announcement of election results. Additionally, the political party is authorized to transfer funds from the transaction account for financing the campaign to the basic bank account of the party.¹⁸

Public media

With the amendments to the Electoral Code of 2020 and 2021, the media covering the election process are obliged to do so in an impartial, balanced and fair manner in their programme, and the public and national broadcasters are obliged to do so in an approachable and accessible format and language (voice messages for the blind), as well as in sign language. Furthermore, from the day of announcing the elections until the day of the end of the voting, the broadcasters, print media and electronic media (internet portals) that broadcast paid political advertising with funds from the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia, are obliged to broadcast or publish informational and educational campaigns of the SEC too, intended for the citizens in relation to the election process, every three hours for thirty seconds.

¹⁷ "Official Gazette", Law on Amending the Law on Financing of Political Parties, 140/2018

¹⁸ "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 215/2021

The SEC's campaigns will be published free of charge, they are intended to educate voters about exercising their right to vote and for fair and democratic elections, and they are not considered paid political advertising.

The Electoral Code stipulates that from the day of announcing the elections until the beginning of the election campaign, broadcasters, print media and electronic media (portals) may not broadcast paid political advertising, except for announcements for collecting signatures for support for the candidacy of a group of voters. In the case of broadcasting, i.e., publishing announcements for collecting signatures in support of candidacies, this is done in assigned advertising slots of the allowed advertising time of one real hour. Other significant changes in the Electoral Code, covered by Article 75-f, relate to the regulation of political advertising in the electronic media and the extension of advertising time. With the additions to this article, during the election campaign, the broadcasters covering the elections can broadcast a total of nine minutes and thirty seconds per real hour intended only for paid political advertising. From these 9 minutes and 30 seconds, a total of four minutes can be allocated for the ruling political parties, four minutes for the opposition political parties, one minute for the parties that did not win enough MPs in the last elections to form a parliamentary group, and 30 seconds are intended for political parties that are not represented in the Macedonian Parliament. Minutes for additional advertising time are allocated by prior written agreement.

With the latest changes, up to 7% of the advertising space on electronic media (internet portals) and print media can be allocated to parties that did not win enough MPs in the last parliamentary elections to form a parliamentary group. A maximum of 3% of the advertising space is provided for non-parliamentary political parties or candidates.

If they provide paid political advertising for the participants in the election campaign, they are obliged to register with the State Election Commission within three days from the day of announcing the elections.

There are additions in the manner of fulfilling the financial obligations incurred towards the broadcasters, print and electronic media that refer to the announcement of paid political advertising of the parties participating in the election campaign. With the latest changes, broadcasters and print media are obliged to apply the price lists for paid political advertising during the election campaign, for each media separately. The average price per second for one day is obtained according to the different price-advertising time periods. The price lists must not be changed until the completion of the election process, and the price cannot exceed the average advertising price of each broadcaster separately, calculated in the last five election cycles. The State Election Commission is obliged to publish on its website the submitted price lists with the average calculated prices determined by the broadcasters, print media, electronic media (internet portals) within 10 days from the expiration of the deadline for submission of price lists. If the SEC finds irregularities in the price lists, it reports to the appropriate media to make a correction of the price list within 72 hours. Broadcasters who fail to act upon reporting lose the right to paid political advertising.

The State Election Commission pays the costs for the published paid political advertising to the broadcasters, print media and electronic media based on the submitted invoice within 30 days from the announcement of the final results. In addition to the submitted invoice, a media plan is submitted, as well as a Report on realized services that are confirmed by the broadcasters, print media and electronic media, and by the participant in the election campaign. The media plan and the Report on realized services are submitted on forms that are prescribed, adopted and published by the SEC. The report on realized services should contain a copy of each announcement with a clearly visible and legible date for each day of the period for which the advertising space in the print media is rented, a copy (print screen) of each published banner for each day of the period for which the advertising space of the electronic media (internet portal) is rented, and a copy of each published banner, as well as written statements for realized impressions for each day of the period for which the advertising space of the electronic media (internet portal) is rented.

When it comes to political advertising, in addition to the provided 2 euros in denar counter value (excluding VAT) per registered voter out of a total of registered voters in the country, with the latest changes, in the future, for local elections, an additional amount of 1 euro in denar counter value (excluding VAT) will be provided per registered voter on the territory of the municipality where the second round of voting is held. For non-parliamentary political parties or candidates, a maximum of 3% of the funds is provided, and 7% can be used by parties that did not win enough MPs in the last parliamentary elections to form a parliamentary group.

Article 76-c of the Electoral Code is amended to define the manner in which the Agency for Audio and Audio-visual Media Services (AAVMS) monitors the political advertising during the campaign period.

The Agency for Audio and Audio-visual Media Services is obliged to monitor the election media representation and the programme service of the broadcasters in the Republic of North Macedonia, from the day of announcing the elections until the end of the voting on the election day. From the day of announcing the elections, AAVMU is obliged to submit weekly reports to the SEC. During the election campaign, it should submit daily reports and publish them on the Agency's website. In case of violations of the provisions on advertising, the AAVMU should initiate a misdemeanor procedure against the broadcaster within 48 hours from the determination of the violations of the provisions. Regarding these procedures, the competent court is obliged to decide within 48 hours with certain deadlines for appeal. AAVMU is obliged to establish full monitoring of the broadcasters participating in the election campaign.¹⁹

State Commission for Prevention of Corruption

In accordance with the Law on Prevention of Corruption and Conflict of Interest²⁰, the State Commission for Prevention of Corruption (DKSK) has the authority to monitor the legality of the use, i.e., the management of budget funds from the day of announcing until the end of the elections, i.e., to monitor the legality of campaign financing. In case of suspicion of illegal financing of the election campaign, the DKSK may initiate a procedure to determine the factual situation, and if it determines that the suspicions are justified, it is obliged to initiate a procedure to determine responsibility before the competent authorities within 15 days of the decision.

With the amendments of 15 September, 2021, the State Commission for Prevention of Corruption is obliged to publish on its website the register of official motor vehicles of all public funds, public enterprises and other legal entities that have state capital. The deadline for submitting data on the number, type, license plate and driving status of motor vehicles to the DKSK is ten days from the date of the decision to call elections. The data are submitted in electronic form on a form prescribed by the State Election Commission on the proposal of the DKSK. In case the data is not submitted, the DKSK may initiate a misdemeanour procedure within 15 days from the expiration of the deadline for submission of data.

Moreover, if there are grounds for suspicion of bribery during elections and voting, the DKSK will immediately notify the competent prosecutor in writing. Additionally, it monitors public procurement procedures and inspects documentation to determine whether there are privileges or discrimination in relation to public procurement contracts, and it monitors possible pressures by a political party in selecting or appointing or dismissing persons holding official, managerial or other functions or duties. If it finds that there is a suspicion of a legal violation, the DKSK acts in accordance with its competencies.

²⁰ "Official Gazette", Law on Prevention of Corruption and Conflict of Interest, 12/19

The organizers of the election campaigns are obliged to submit other data at the request of the State Commission in order to exercise its competence to monitor the legality of the financing of the election campaigns. Based on the received and obtained information, the State Commission prepares a special report on the determined conditions, which should be submitted to the Parliament of the Republic of North Macedonia no later than three months from the day of the elections and published on the DKSK website.²¹

State Audit Office

The legal task of the State Audit Office (DZR) is to audit the use of public funds and to provide information to state institutions and the public on the proper use of funds. With the amendments to the Electoral Code in 2020, the State Audit Office ex officio audits the overall financial report for the election campaign, in accordance with the auditing standards of the International Organization of Supreme Audit Institutions (INTOSAI) and the rules set out in the INTOSAI Code of Ethics, published by the Minister of Finance in the "Official Gazette of the Republic of North Macedonia".²²

At the request of the State Audit Office, the participants in the election campaign are obliged to submit additional data and notifications for financing the election campaign. Holders of payment operations where the transaction account for financing the election campaign is opened are obliged to submit all required data for that account and its transactions. Additionally, the entities that provide media advertising services are obliged to submit all contracts, invoices and other financial documents for financing the election campaign at the request of the State Audit Office.

The State Audit Office has the right to request data on paid political information of the participants in the election campaign from AAVMU. It may also request financial documents from third parties regarding the financing of election campaign participants.

The SAO should publish the audit reports from the performed audit of the financial statements of the participants on its website within the deadline determined by law and should submit them to the SEC and the SCPC.

²² "Official Gazette": Law on Amending and Supplementing the Electoral Code, 42/20

If it finds irregularities in the financial statements of the participants in the election campaign, in accordance with the Electoral Code (Article 85-b paragraph 9), the SAO submits a request for initiating misdemeanor proceedings or a report to the competent public prosecutor within 3 days from the day of determining the irregularities.

History of local elections in the Republic of North Macedonia (1996-2017)

1. History of local elections in the Republic of North Macedonia (1996-2017)

The first local elections in the independent Republic of Macedonia were held in 1996, when the average voter turnout for the election of councilors for the municipalities was 60.17%, while it was 53.20% for the City of Skopje. The average voter turnout for the election of mayors was 60.28%, while it was 53.20% for the City of Skopje. Due to irregularities in the voting process, in some municipalities the votes were annulled, meaning that the data do not include the results of the election of mayors and council members from 9 municipalities in total. These local elections were held in accordance with the territorial organization as of 1996, according to which 123 municipalities were established, with the City of Skopje as a separate unit.²³ SDSM won the majority of mayoral positions, 51 in total, VMRO-DMPNE and MAAK-Conservative won 27 positions, and the Socialist Party won 19 positions.²⁴ 1,495,288 voters had the right to vote.

During the local elections in 2000, there were considerable violations in the election process according to the international standards for free and democratic elections. The elections took place with a series of incidents and outbursts of violence, as well as intimidation of citizens. In the municipalities of Gostivar, Tetovo, Labunista, Dzepciste, and Mavrovi Anovi, the elections were accompanied with armed incidents. In several electoral units of other municipalities the ballot boxes were opened and destroyed by force. Violence also occurred in various places during the second voting round. The mission of OSCE/ODIHR registered group voting in 25% of the monitored locations, in 8% of the locations an open voting was registered, and in 5% voting instead of other persons. The winner of these elections was the coalition led by VMRO-DPMNE and Democratic Alternative (DA) with 59 mayoral positions, and the coalition led by SDSM "For Macedonia Together" won 32 mayoral positions.²⁵ The PDP-NDP coalition won 23 mayoral positions, the People's Democratic Party of Serbs – 1, the Democratic Party of Turks – 1, while two mayoral positions were won by independent candidates. 1,634,859 voters had the right to vote.²⁶

The local elections in 2005 again did not meet the key international standards for universality, equality and secrecy of the right to vote. Unlike the previous ones, these elections were not marked with violence, but there was a considerable amount of irregularities in the western and northwestern regions of the country, as well as in Skopje. At the same time, the elections in 2005 were the first ones held according to the territorial organization as of 2004 which established 84 municipalities on the territory of Macedonia, preserving the status of the City of Skopje as a separate unit of local government.²⁷ The mission of OSCE/ODIHR registered 30 cases of stuffing the ballot boxes and over 50 cases of voting instead of other persons. In 9 municipalities, among which the City of Skopje, as a result of the complaints related to the irregularities in the first voting round, the latter had to be repeated. The second round of voting was to take place at these locations as well, which resulted in delays of the second round that was then held on 10th April 2005. The voter turnout in the first round was 56.36%, in the second round on 27th March 53.66%, and on 10th April 35.6%. As a result of these elections, the coalition led by SDSM won 36 mayoral positions. VMRO-DPMNE and their coalition won 21 mayoral positions, DUI 15, VMRO-NP 3, DPA 2 and the Union of the Roma 1. Seven independent candidates became mayors, among which the candidate for the City of Skopje, Trifun Kostovski, who was supported by VMRO-DPMNE.²⁸ 1,711,293 voters had the right to vote.

The local elections in 2009, which were held on the same day as the presidential elections, were the first local elections which took place in general accordance with the international and OSCE standards for democratic elections. However, the OSCE/ODIHR mission still had major remarks related to the intimidation of voters during these elections. The monitoring report points at intimidation and pressure on the voters, particularly on those employed in the public administration as well as social welfare beneficiaries, who were threatened to vote for the ruling party.²⁹ In the 2009 elections there were also cases of family votes, voting instead of other persons (3% of the cases), one person “assisting” several other voters (4%), intimidation of voters and members of electoral boards (EB) (1%), identical signatures in the registry of the Voters List (2%) and multiple voting (1%).³⁰ VMRODPMNE won the elections in 56 municipalities, DUI in 15, SDSM in 7, and DPA, ND, DPTM, SR, PDSM won one mayoral position each. Two independent candidates also won mayoral positions. A total of 1,792,082 voters had the right to vote.

The priority recommendations from 2009, which would be repeated in the report on the early parliamentary elections in 2011, require the government to take measures and deal with the pressure on citizens and their intimidation. Besides this, the OSCE/ODIHR report provided five other priority recommendations: to separate the state from the party; to eliminate all drawbacks and ambiguities in the Electoral Code; to review and update the Voters List; to take measures in order to settle conflicts of interest among those involved in politics who control the private radio broadcasting services; to introduce deadlines for court decisions related to objections by the Broadcasting Council. In both reports, OSCE/ODIHR recommends reviewing the Voters List, which was one of the recommendations that were fulfilled. The European Union recognized the country's success achieved during the implementation of the elections and replicated the conclusions and recommendations of OSCE/ODIHR. The US Ambassador at the time, Philip Reeker, assessed the elections as well implemented.³¹

The local elections in 2013 were held in a peaceful atmosphere, receiving positive assessment of the efficiency of their implementation, although certain drawbacks were highlighted. The latter were mainly related to the lack of conditions for securing equal competitive space among the candidates. There were certain remarks regarding the overlapping of state and party activities, the financing of the campaign, the legal framework, as well as the media coverage.³² In some rare cases, there were certain remarks related to violating the secrecy of voting, family voting and destroying campaign material. There were serious remarks about the media in relation to their division along ethnic and party lines.³³ OSCE/ODIHR prepared a range of recommendations for overcoming the drawbacks. The general recommendations involved increasing the accuracy of the Voter List, protecting voters from intimidation, and amendments to the Electoral Code. Regarding the financing, the recommendations referred to changes in the relation between the donations from legal and physical entities, precising whether the limitations of the campaign expenses refer to both rounds of the elections, as well as more detailed reporting.³⁴ Regarding the media, the recommendations referred to securing a more balanced presentation of the candidates by improving the Electoral Code, the Law on Radio Broadcasting, and addressing the discrepancies between them.³⁵ A total of 1,743,403 voters, distributed across 2976 stations, were entitled to vote. The new Law on Local Self Government was brought into force with these elections, which was the first time mayors and councilors were elected in a total of 81 municipalities, since the municipalities of Vraneštica, Drugovo, Zajas, and Oslomej had joined the municipality of Kičevo. The turnout on these elections was rather high. In the first election round it reached 67%, while in the second round that took place in 29 municipalities the turnout reached 59%. The first round of voting was repeated in the municipality of Dolneni, while due to the annulled results, the voting in the second round was repeated in the municipalities of Center, Dolneni, Struga, and Gjorče Petrov. The turnout on the third election day was 65%.³⁶ These local elections were dominated by VMRO-DPMNE, which won most of the mayoral positions in relation to the other parties. VMRO-DPMNE won 56 mayoral positions, DUI 14 mayors, SDSM 4, DPA 2, the Democratic Party of the Turks (DPTM), the Serbian Progressive Party in Macedonia (SNS) and The Union of Roma in Macedonia (SRM) won one mayor each, and two independent candidates were elected.³⁷

The local elections in 2017 were held in a peaceful and competitive atmosphere, without major incidents. The few irregularities did not affect the election results to a great extent. The voter turnout reached 59.51%, in the first and 51.92% in the second round, which is a decrease in relation to the local elections in 2013. The parties were enabled to freely run their campaigns, with respect for the fundamental freedoms of association, public gathering, and expression. Although not extensively, there was certain negative rhetoric noted between the two major political parties. In addition, the OSCE/ODIHR stated that there were solid findings about buying votes, intimidating voters, and isolated cases of violence that took place in the pre-election period. Remarkably, the candidates from the largest parties (at least most of them) refrained from offensive speech on ethnic grounds, and some of the parties were concerned to get attention from voters representing other ethnic communities. The coalition led by SDSM won a convincing victory in the local elections with 57 mayoral positions, including the City of Skopje. The Coalition led by VMRO-DPMNE won 5 mayoral positions, DUI 10, the political party Alliance of the Albanians, which participated in these local elections as a separate party for the first times, won 3 mayoral positions, and BESA, DPA, and DPT won one mayoral position each, while 3 mayoral positions were attained by independent candidates. Most media services respected the journalistic standards and enabled equal representation of diverse standpoints on current political and social topics and issues. However, during the election campaign prior to both rounds of the voting, certain violations of the rules for unbiased media coverage were registered, as well as violations of the Election Laws by several media services.³⁸

Macedonian electoral system for local elections

2. Macedonian electoral system for local elections

Electoral model⁴¹

In the Republic of North Macedonia, the elections for mayors in the Local Government Units (LGUs) follow the majority rule, while the selection of council members in the Local Government Units is done by the proportional representation model. The elections for mayors and council members are held simultaneously in all municipalities every four years in the second half of October. The President of the Assembly calls for new elections with a suitable act published in the Official Gazette of the Republic of North Macedonia, and the period after the call for elections until the day of the elections should not be more than 90, or less than 70 days.

The mayors are elected by the majority voting model. The candidate who has won the majority of votes in the first round is appointed as mayor, if the turnout amounts to at least a third of the number of registered voters in the Voters List for the respective Local Government Unit. If none of the candidates fulfills the necessary conditions, the elections are repeated in the second round for the two candidates with the largest number of votes. If there is only one candidate participating in the elections, but he or she fails to win the necessary majority, the voting procedure is repeated. The second round of voting is conducted 14 days after the end of the first round. In the second round, the candidate with the majority of votes is appointed as mayor.

The proportional representation model is applied for the election of council members in the LGUs, and the D'Hondt formula is applied for distributing mandates. According to this formula, the total number of votes cast for the proposed candidate lists is divided first by 1, then by 2, then 3... right up to the number of seats to be allocated for the respective constituency. The distribution figures are ranged by size, and the highest distribution figures are taken into consideration when allocating the seats in the council. One candidate list is allocated as many seats in the council as there are highest distribution figures from those taken into consideration.

Electoral bodies

The State Election Commission (SEC), together with the Municipal Election Commissions (MEC), the Election Commission of the City of Skopje, the Election Boards (EB), and the Special Election Boards (SEB) for voting within the country are the electoral bodies responsible for implementing local elections.

The SEC comprises seven members elected by the Assembly with a two-thirds majority. The mandate of the members is effective from the day of their appointment by the Assembly until the election of a new composition of the State Election Commission, but no more than two years. The Assembly announces the election of the members of the State Election Commission in the Official Gazette and in the printed media. The announcement is effectively valid eight days from the date of its publication. The Assembly's Committee on Election and Appointment Issues drafts the proposal of the list of applicants and submits it to the Assembly. Out of the proposed candidates, the political parties in the opposition nominate the President and two members to the State Election Commission, while the ruling parties nominate the vice-president and three members. If the political parties fail to submit their proposed nominations within three days from the receipt of the notification, the President, the Vice-President and the members of the State Election Commission shall be nominated by the Committee on Election and Appointment Issues. The SEC's competence also includes publicising the Voters' List for citizens' review within 15 days from the day of announcement of the elections. The Voters' List can be reviewed for a duration of 20. The SEC has within its remit a technical service managed by a secretary-general in charge of performing the professional, administrative, organisational and technical tasks.

The Municipal Election Commissions (MEC) established in each municipality and the Election Commission of the City of Skopje are responsible for implementing the elections and monitoring the work of the election boards within the territory under their auspices. Each MEC comprises five members, namely, one president and four other members, each of whom have a deputy. The members and deputies of the MEC and the Election Commission of the City of Skopje are highly qualified selected employees from the state, public and municipal administration with a mandate of five years. Their selection is conducted by the SEC by random choice, using the data records of state and municipal administrations, the administration of the City of Skopje and the public administration.

The Election Board (EB) is a body established at each polling station comprised of five members, including a president and four members, each of whom have a deputy. The president of the Election Board and his/her deputy and two members and their deputies are selected by random choice from among the employees in the state, public and municipal administration and the administration of the City of Skopje who have completed at least a secondary education degree for a mandate of four years. One member and their deputy are nominated by the political parties in opposition that won the highest number of votes in the previous parliamentary elections, and the final member and deputy are nominated by the governing political parties that won the majority of votes in the previous parliamentary elections. The random selection of members for the Election Boards is conducted by the MEC within their areas of responsibility upon the SEC's request.

In the municipalities in which at least 20% of the citizens are representatives of the nonmajority communities, the principle of proportionate and equitable representation is applied to the composition of the MECs and the Electoral Boards. Moreover, the Law prescribes each gender be represented in the electoral bodies by at least 30 % of its members. Members of the MECs and of the Election Boards shall not be elected or appointed if, at the moment of appointment, they hold the status of Government officials, Assembly officials or employees in the state administration of the Ombudsman, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of Interior, the Secretariat for Legislation, the State Statistical Office, the Directorate for Protection and Rescue, the technical services at the Administrative Court, the SEC, the State Commission for Prevention of Corruption (SCPC) or the Agency for Audio and Audio-Visual Media Services.

Elective rights

Every Macedonian citizen who is at least 18 years old, who has legal capacity and whose permanent place of residence is the electoral unit or the municipality in which the elections are held is entitled to vote. Voting is secret and voters should not be held responsible for the cast vote, nor should they be asked to show who they voted for or why they did not vote at all. It is the responsibility of the SEC to inform and educate the citizens about the voting procedure and to provide the polling stations with voting instructions in Macedonian, Albanian, Turkish, Vlach, Serbian, Roma, and Bosniac. The lists of candidates are also displayed at the polling stations.

A candidate for mayor or council member can be any person over 18 years old with legal capacity. Persons sentenced to 6 months imprisonment and more with a final court decision whose sentence has not started yet, or who serve time for committed crimes, cannot run for these positions. Besides these conditions, the candidates for mayor or council member should maintain a permanent place of residence in the municipality they run for.

Limitations for current state officials⁴²

The functions of councilor and mayor are professionally conducted, and they cannot coincide with the function of President of the Republic, President of the Republic of Macedonia's Government, minister, judge, public prosecutor, public attorney, ombudsman, or other of public offices, elected or appointed by the Republic of Macedonia's Assembly and Government. The function of mayor can neither coincide with the function of MP, nor with the provision of expert or administrative services in the state administrative organs, nor with any other economic or profitable vocation, nor with any membership in administrative boards of public companies, public institutions, funds, agencies, institutes, and other legal entities, nor with the function of representative of the state and social capital in the trading companies. In addition, the function of mayor of the City of Skopje and the function of councilor in the City of Skopje's Council cannot coincide with the function of municipal mayor and the function of councilor of the municipalities in the area of the City of Skopje.⁴³ From the day the decision to call elections was made until the end of the elections, they are forbidden to do the following:

- » to initiate construction work with budget resources, public funds, public properties and other legal persons who own state capital, or to initiate the construction of new objects for infrastructure such as roads, water conduits, transmission lines, sewage systems, sports playgrounds, and other facilities, or facilities for social activities such as schools, kindergartens, and other facilities, unless budget resources have already been allocated to that goal;
- » to carry out disbursements of salaries, pensions, social assistance or other allowances and material fees, from the budget funds or from public funds, other than regular monthly payments, or to disburse one-year transfers and payments as one-off transfers from the budget funds or from public funds;
- » to initiate the procedure for employing new employees or for terminating employment in state and public institutions, while the initiated procedures shall be put on halt, except for cases considered as urgent and non-deferrable;

- » to sell state capital;
- » to sign collective agreements; as well as other limitations according to the Election Code;

In case a high official has breached these rules, a fine in the denar countervalue of 1.000 to 2.000 euros shall be imposed on him/her. The attempt of acting against these rules as well as contravention against them is considered a criminal act according to the provisions of the Criminal Code.

If a candidate for Mayor is a member of the armed forces of the Republic of North Macedonia, the uniformed section of the police, the authorised personnel at the Ministry of Internal Affairs, Ministry of Defense, or the Intelligence Agency, their professional engagement will be suspended from the day their candidacy is confirmed, prohibiting that person to participate in the election campaign in official uniform.

Additionally, from 20 days before the start of the election campaign until the end of the elections, it is not allowed to pay subsidies which are not part of regular monthly wages, nor is it allowed to organise public events to initiate or put into operation construction works of facilities for public use or infrastructure financed from the budget, public funds, or resources of public companies or other legal entities with state capital.

From the day of the adoption of the decision to announce elections until the completion of the elections, i.e., until the constitution of the council of the municipalities and the City of Skopje, no public events can be held, the Ministry of Finance is obliged to publish all budget reimbursements on its website, except for salaries, pensions and communal expenses, in a separate database for budget expenses during the election period. The Ministry is also obliged to submit a pre-election financial report two weeks following the announcement of the elections. This report has to include an overview of all planned and realised income and expenditures from the budget per budget items, covering the period from the beginning of the fiscal year until the time of submission of the report published on the website.

The number of council members

The number of council members in each of the Local Government Units is determined in proportion to the size of the population living within the respective unit. The municipalities with less than 5000 inhabitants establish councils that consist of 9

The City of Skopje Council consists of 45 members.⁴⁴

The procedure and the right to appoint candidates for mayors and councilor lists

The right to propose candidate lists for councilors and candidates for mayors is held by the registered political parties, individually or as part of coalitions, as well as groups of voters. Depending on the size of the LGU, the groups of voters have to collect a certain number of signatures: from 100 signatures for LGU with less than 10,000 inhabitants to 450 for LGU with more than 100,001 inhabitants, while for the City of Skopje, 1,000 signatures are required to run for mayor.

On the candidate list for councilors, a candidate belonging to the less represented gender should be placed on every third position. The lists of candidates for mayors and council members are presented to the MEC at least 35 days before the elections take place. The MEC should publish the lists at least 25 days prior to the elections.

The right to nominate candidates is exercised by submitting a candidate list to the SEC. An individual candidate can only be nominated on one list and a submitter can only submit one list of candidates for mayoral or municipal counselors.

Election campaign

The election campaign for the 2021 local elections starts 20 days before the election day, i.e., on 27 September at 00:00, and ends on 15 October at 24:00.⁴⁵ The election campaign for the second voting round lasts until 24:00 on 29 October. In both the first and second voting rounds, the election campaign must not run 24 hours before election day and on the election day. The day before the first election round, i.e., 16 October, is a day of pre-election silence, when the candidates are not allowed to run an election campaign, and the media are not allowed to promote the participants in the election process. The same applies to 30 October, the day before the second election round.

The political entities are obliged to provide a single tax identification number (TIN)⁴⁶, and to create a transaction account no earlier than 48 hours after the announcement of the elections, and no later than 48 hours after the confirmation of the candidate lists, and within that period the proof of secured TIN (EDB) and the created transaction is submitted to the competent Municipal Election Commission (MEC). The transaction account is closed within 60 days from the announcement of the final election results from the held elections, thus deleting the TIN of the political entity registered before a competent authority.

The campaign may be financed from the funds of the regular account of the political party, the political party membership fees, donations that must not exceed 3.000 euros for physical persons and 30.000 euros for legal persons, and by means of loans taken by political parties for the purpose of their electoral campaign. The campaign may be financed with monetary assets, goods and services, the value of which must not exceed the respective amounts. If the amount of the donation exceeds the allowed amount, the participant in the electoral campaign is obliged to transfer the difference between the allowed and the donated value to the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia within five days from the date of receipt of the donation. The participants in the electoral campaign are allowed to spend 110 denars at most per registered voter in the electoral unit for which they have submitted their list of candidates.⁴⁷

The electoral campaigns must not be financed from the budget funds of the municipalities and of the City of Skopje, from the funds of public enterprises and institutions, from the funds of citizen association, religious communities, religious groups or foundations, from funds of foreign governments or international institutions, authorities or organisations of foreign states and other foreign persons, nor from funds of enterprises with combined assets with prevailing foreign assets or from unidentified sources. Broadcasters, printed media and electronic media (internet portals), as well as their related parties must not finance or make donations to political parties or independent candidates, including campaigns. Related parties⁴⁸ in the sense hereof are considered members of the family and of the family of the marital or extramarital partner, persons who have shares in the ownership structure, who take part in the management, persons who have spent a long period in marketing or who are bound to other service contracts earning them more than 30% of their income from advertisement, tele shopping, or sponsorship.⁴⁹

In case the candidacy is not executed, the organisers of the electoral campaign are obliged to return the unspent donations to the donors not later than 60 days. The participant in the election campaign is obliged to immediately, and no later than 30 days from the day of closing the transaction account, to submit a total financial report with a specification for the incomes and expenditures in the election campaign. In order to limit the fund spent on election campaigns, as well as to reduce corruption in the media, amendments to the Electoral Code were adopted. The participants in the election campaign return the excess of the collected funds to the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia, which is then redirected to humanitarian activities. With the amendments to the Electoral Code, the right to monetary allowance from the state budget for the elected candidates for council members of mayors who have won 1.5% of the cast votes in the electoral unit was abolished. Previously, the amount of the allowance had been 15 denars per won vote. In addition, the amendments and addenda stipulate that the financial liabilities incurred in relation to the broadcasters and printed and electronic media which relate to the publication of paid political advertisement of the participants in the electoral campaign shall be covered by the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia.

From the day elections are called until their end, radio broadcasting companies, printed and electronic media (internet-portals) may not publish advertisements financed from the state budget, from the budget of the municipalities and the City of Skopje, or from persons that have been provided public authorisations by law.

The role of the public media⁵¹

During the campaign, private media, including the electronic media (internet portals) and the public broadcasting service, are obliged to provide equal access to the presentation of the electoral programmes and candidates in a just, unbiased and balanced manner. The Agency for Audio and Audio-Visual Media Services (AVAMS)⁵² is obliged to monitor the electoral presentation of the parties and the candidates as well as the broadcasters' programme service from the day the elections are announced until the end of voting on election day. In case of violation of the principle of equal access, the Agency is obliged to initiate a misdemeanour procedure against the responsible media.

Editors, journalists, programme hosts and presenters who have been engaged in the preparation of the broadcasters' programmes must not take part in the pre-election activities of political parties, coalitions, groups of voters or their representatives, i.e. participants in the election campaign, during the election process. In case they do decide to take part in such activities, their engagement in the broadcasters' programmes shall be suspended from the day of the announcement until the end of the elections.

The public broadcasting service, Macedonian Radio Television (MRTV), is obliged to inform the citizens on voting procedures and electoral matters without any financial compensation whatsoever. MRTV is required to provide equal access to the informative programme. That means that 30% of the programme should relate

During the election campaign, MRTV is obligated to broadcast the political presentation of participants in the elections in a balanced manner, free of charge. For the election of mayors, in accordance with the principle of equality, for all candidates for mayors in both the first and second rounds of elections. For the election of members of the councils, in accordance with the principle of proportionality, according to the number of confirmed lists of candidates for members of the councils. Unlike MRTV, radio broadcasting companies are not allowed to broadcast free of charge political presentation from the day the elections are called until their end.

In the period between the call for elections and the start of the election campaign, radio broadcasters and the printed media are not allowed to broadcast or publish any paid political advertising. During this time, advertisements financed from the state or municipal budget or the budget of the City of Skopje are not allowed either. Radio broadcasters are compelled to record their programmes from the day elections are called until their conclusion, and they should keep that material for 30 days after the elections in order to provide the AAMS with respective data in case it is requested.

The media must determine the price-lists⁵³ for political advertisement within five days after the announcement of elections and shall publish them, ensuring they undergo no changes during the campaign. The broadcasters who cover the elections may broadcast up to nine minutes and 30 seconds of additional time for advertisement of one actual hour of broadcast programme exclusively intended for paid political advertisement purposes whereas the two largest ruling political parties and the two largest opposition parties who won the majority of votes at the last parliamentary elections may be granted four minutes each. Parliamentary political parties that do not have a parliamentary group can be granted 1 minute each, and non-parliamentary political parties or candidates, thirty seconds. Minutes for additional advertising time are allocated by prior written agreement. If there is an interest to merge the additional time slots intended for advertisement of a political party in two subsequent actual hours, the media outlet should provide for

Under the amendments to the Electoral Code, all costs related to publishing paid political advertisement shall be covered by the State Election Commission upon invoice submitted by the broadcaster, print medium or electronic medium (internet portal). The Agreement should be submitted together with the invoice, as well as the media plan of the participant in the electoral campaign and the report on the services offered by the broadcaster, print medium or electronic medium (internet portal). The invoice and the enclosed documents should be submitted within 30 days after the publishing of the final election results.⁵⁵

The funds for the paid political advertisement are allocated from the Budget of the Republic of North Macedonia and they must not exceed the amount of 2 euros in denar countervalue (without VAT) per registered voter, and for the local elections, an additional 1 euro in denar counter value (excluding VAT) per registered voter on the territory of the municipality where the second voting round is held. These funds are distributed by prior written agreement, as follows: up to 45% of these funds may be used by the two largest political parties in power, which won the largest number of votes in the last parliamentary elections, and up to 45% of these funds may be used by the two largest political parties in the opposition, which won the largest number of votes in the last parliamentary elections. The remaining funds, however no more than 10%, may be used by those political parties in the Assembly which did not win sufficient MP seats at the last parliamentary elections to form a party group, or by extra-parliamentary political parties or candidates.

The amount to be paid by a participant in the electoral process to a single electronic medium (internet portal) or print medium may not exceed 15.000 (fifteen thousand) euros in denar countervalue (without VAT). The total amount that one participant may spend for presentation in all electronic media (internet portals) and printed media cannot be more than 25% of the funds earmarked for paid political advertisement.

Results from public opinion polls related to the candidates should not be published by public services during the last 5 days before the elections. Results of public opinion polls conducted on the day of the elections must not be published before the polling stations close⁵⁶ at 19:00 hours.⁵⁷

Monitoring the elections⁵⁸

Accredited observers are entitled to monitor the elections, and the accreditation is issued by the SEC. The observer accreditation may be obtained by domestic as well as international civil organisations which have been registered at least one year prior to the elections and which have enshrined the principle of protection of human rights in their statutes. Representatives of foreign states may also observe the elections. The authorised representatives of the list submitters are entitled to designate their own representative to monitor the work of the electoral authorities.

3. Political parties and coalitions⁵⁹

VMRO-DPMNE⁶⁰

VMRO-DPMNE (VMRO – Democratic Party for Macedonian National Unity) declares itself a center-right people's party within the parameters of Christian-Democratic ideology. In 2017, the party announced that it would preserve its values, but focus on wider legitimization as a civic right wing party. Since Macedonia's independence, VMRO-DPMNE has been one of the two largest parties. It has participated in almost all the parliamentary and local elections, except the 1994 parliamentary elections when the party boycotted the second round. As a result of the third parliamentary elections, held in 1998, VMRO-DPMNE established the Government for the first time after having won 49 mandates in coalition with the Democratic Alternative, which won 13 seats, and PDPA-NDP (later DPA) with 11 seats, as well as several smaller parties. VMRO-DPMNE remained in power until 2002. However, during the conflict from May until November 2001, a broad coalition government was established, which included ministers from SDSM and LDP. In 2002, VMRO-DPMNE and their coalition partners won 33 seats in the Parliament, lost the elections and formed the opposition until 2006. In 2006, together with the coalition "For a Better Macedonia", they achieved victory in the parliamentary elections, winning 45 mandates in total and thus being entitled to establish the Government. During these elections, the party promoted its program for the first time, with specific deadlines, which was a novelty in the electoral competitions. Since then, VMRO-DPMNE has achieved victory in three other election cycles: in the snap parliamentary elections in 2008, 2011, and 2014. In the 2008 elections, the party won a record of 63 parliamentary seats together with the coalition "For a Better Macedonia". In the 2011 snap parliamentary elections, VMRO-DPMNE won 56 seats together.

In the 2016 snap parliamentary elections, VMRO-DPMNE won 51 MP seats. Notwithstanding the fact that they had gained the majority of MP seats and that the president of the party, Nikola Gruevski, was given the mandate to form a government by State President Ivanov, the party was not able to gather the necessary majority of 61 MPs within the given deadline, and, therefore, failed. The mandate to form a government was then passed to Zoran Zaev, the president of SDSM, which had won 49 MP seats at the elections. Zoran Zaev's Government was elected in May 2017, with 62 votes in favour. Compared to the previous local elections in 2013, when VMRO-DPMNE won 57 mayoral seats, this is a decrease of 52 mayoral seats.

⁶⁰ The political parties are in alphabetical order starting with the three largest parliamentary parties.

Ljubčo Georgievski was the president of VMRO-DPMNE from its establishment until 2003. Georgievski resigned at the party congress in May 2003, and Nikola Gruevski was elected to the position. Gruevski was the leader of the party until December 2017, when he submitted his resignation, which was accepted by the Central Committee. At the 16th Congress, also held in December 2017, Hristijan Mickoski was elected Party President. In the 2020 parliamentary elections, VMRO-DPMNE led the coalition "Renewal of Macedonia" and won 44 seats.

In these local elections, under the slogan "Macedonia for all people", the Coalition "Renewal of Macedonia" led by VMRO-DPMNE will run with 63 candidates for mayors and lists of councilors in 74 municipalities. The coalition consists of 17 parties: VMRO-DPMNE, Civic Option for Macedonia - GROM, VOICE for Macedonia, Movement for National Unity of the Turks, Democratic Party of Serbs in Macedonia, Democratic Party of Roma, Democratic Forces of Roma, Macedonian Action (MAAK), New Liberal Party, Party of the Vlachs from Macedonia, Party of United Democrats of Macedonia, Roma United of Macedonia, Workers' Agricultural Party of the Republic of Macedonia, Socialist Party of Macedonia, Serbian Progressive Party, Communist Party of Macedonia - Tito's Forces and People's Party of Roma.⁶¹ Also, in these local elections, VMRO-DPMNE announced a pre-election coalition with the Alliance for Albanians and Alternative.

Democratic Union for Integration

The Democratic Union for Integration (DUI) was formed by former representatives of the People's Liberation Army (ONA) which had initiated the military conflict in 2001. Ideologically, DUI declares itself as a center left party aimed at advancing the rights of the Albanians, as well as full implementation of the Ohrid Framework Agreement. The party was established in 2002 and took part in the parliamentary elections of the same year, winning the largest portion of votes among the Albanian electorate. Thus, DUI secured 16 parliamentary seats and subsequently became part of the Government led by SDSM. DUI was part of the Government from 2002 until 2006, and it was represented by the largest number of ministers ever coming from an Albanian party in the Government of the Republic of Macedonia. In the 2006 parliamentary elections, DUI won the majority of votes among the Albanian electorate (12.2%) and 17 seats in parliament, but after the unsuccessful negotiations with VMRO-DPMNE, it was not included in the Government coalition. As a result, DUI boycotted the work of the Assembly from 2006 until 2008, when snap parliamentary elections were called. In the 2008 parliamentary elections, DUI won 12.8% of the votes and 18 MPs, and as the largest political party representing ethnic Albanians joined the Government under the leadership of Nikola Gruevski. In the next parliamentary elections, in 2011, DUI again emerged as the third largest party in Macedonia, winning 14 parliamentary seats. In 2014, DUI won 19 seats and, again, formed the Government together with VMRO-DPMNE.

In the 2016 parliamentary elections, the party showed much weaker results, winning only 10 seats, partly due to the growth of the Alliance for the Albanians and BESA, as well as the transfer of votes to SDSM. However, owing to the coalition with SDSM, DUI is again part of the Republic of Macedonia's Government. Ali Ahmeti has been president of DUI since its establishment.

At the local level in the 2017 local elections, DUI has 10 mayors from a total of 80 municipalities and the City of Skopje. Social Democratic Union of Macedonia

The Social Democratic Union of Macedonia declares itself a center-left, within the parameters of social-democratic ideology. At the moment, it is the second largest party in Macedonia. It was founded at the Congress on 21st April 1991 as a legal heir to the League of Communists of Macedonia – Party for Democratic Transformation (SKM-PDP). In the same year, the party changed its name to SDSM, and its ideology from communist to social-democratic. SDSM participated in all parliamentary and local elections since the Independence. In 1992, after the dismissal of the first expert Government, SDSM, although not backed by a majority in the Assembly, received the mandate to establish the first political Government of the Republic of Macedonia. In the period between 1994 and 1998, the party held the majority in the Assembly, having won 85 seats together with its coalition partners in the 1994 parliamentary elections, only to lose power in 1998 when they won only 27 seats. SDSM was the largest party in opposition until 2002, when it gained victory in the elections by securing 60 parliamentary seats, and together with its coalition partners stayed in power until the next parliamentary elections in 2006. In the 2006 parliamentary elections the coalition of SDSM won 32 seats. After that, SDSM was in the opposition until 2014, losing in three consecutive election cycles (2008, 2011, and 2014). In the snap parliamentary elections in 2008, together with their coalition partners, SDSM secured 27 parliamentary seats, and in the snap parliamentary elections in 2011, they won 42 seats with their partners. In the 2014 parliamentary elections, SDSM and the coalition won a total of 34 seats. SDSM did not accept the election results and accused of a series of irregularities in the election process. Immediately after the elections, the party decided to return the parliamentary mandates and boycotted the parliament until September 2015, until the signing of the Przino Agreement. In the 2016 parliamentary elections, SDSM and the coalition won a total of 49 seats, which is two less than VMRO-DPMNE, but managed to form a parliamentary majority together with DUI.

Branko Crvenkovski led the party since Macedonia's independence and the transformation from SKM-PDP to SDSM in 1991, until 2004. He withdrew from this position after his victory in the snap presidential elections in 2004, when he became President of the Republic of Macedonia. At the party congress in November 2004, Vlado Bučkovski was elected party leader, and he remained in this position until the defeat in the 2006 elections. After the elections, Bučkovski ceased to enjoy the trust of the party membership, and at the early congress in November 2006, Radmila Šekerinska was elected head of the party. She remained in this position until June 2008, when she resigned following the defeat in the snap parliamentary elections. In September 2008, at the 8th SDSM congress, Zoran Zaev was elected leader of the party. In 2009, when his presidential mandate expired, Branko Crvenkovski was again elected leader of SDSM. He remained in this position until 2013, when he withdrew and appointed the current head of the party, Zoran Zaev.

In the last local elections in 2017, SDSM has won in 57 out of 80 municipalities and the City of Skopje. While in the last early parliamentary elections in 2020, SDSM and its coalition partners won 46 seats and in the post-election negotiations with DPA and DUI managed to form a parliamentary majority and form a government.

In the local elections in 2021, SDSM will run together with other political parties in a coalition titled "The best for my municipality" with candidates for mayors in 68 municipalities and a candidate for mayor of Skopje, as well as 80 councilor lists and councilor list for the City of Skopje. Besides SDSM, the coalition consists of New Social Democratic Party-NSDP, Democratic Union of

Vlachs from Macedonia-DSVM, Pensioners Party-PP, Social Democratic Union-SDU, Democratic Union-DS, Political Party Dignity-PPD, Party for Economic Changes 21-PEP 21, Party for Social and Economic Progress-POEN, Party for European Future-PEI, United for Macedonia-OM, Union of Roma from Macedonia, Party of Democratic Action of Macedonia, Party for Democratic Prosperity of Roma-P DPR, New Alternative-NA, Party for the Full Emancipation of Roma from the Republic of North Macedonia-PCER, Party for Movement of Turks in Macedonia-PDT, United Party for Roma Equality-OPER.⁶²

Democratic Party of Albanians – DPA

The Democratic Party of Albanians was founded in June 1997 by merging the Party for Democratic Prosperity of Albanians (PDPA) and the People's Democratic Party (NDP). The PDPA was founded in 1994 after the radical wing of the Party for Democratic Prosperity (PDP), Arben Xhaferi and Menduh Thaci, left the parent party. DPA declares itself as a party to the right of the center and stands for greater rights of Albanians in the country and for redefining the constitutional framework set by the Ohrid Framework Agreement. The president of the DPA is Menduh Thaci, who was elected to this position on 30 June, 2007. Thaci takes office following the resignation of former President Arben Xhaferi. In the 1998 elections, the DPA won 11 seats and became part of the VMRO-DPMNE-led government. During the 2001 conflict, the DPA remained part of the Government of a broad coalition, which later signed the Framework Agreement. The signatory of the Framework Agreement by DPA is its then president Arben Xhaferi. Following the dissolution of that government, the DPA remained in the governing coalition. In the next parliamentary elections in 2002, the DPA won 5.2% of the votes, and 7 seats, and became the opposition in the Parliament. DPA returned to power when after the elections in 2006 it successfully completed the negotiations with VMRO-DPMNE, which had received the mandate to form a government. In these elections, DPA won 7.5% of the votes and 11 seats, which was less than the seats of the rival DUI. In the 2008 snap elections, the DPA won 11 more seats. After the 2008 snap parliamentary elections, the largest parliamentary party, VMRO-DPMNE, severed its traditional partnership with the DPA and formed a coalition with the largest Albanian party in the Parliament, DUI. In the 2011 snap parliamentary elections, the DPA won eight seats. In the Parliamentary composition 2014 – 2016, DPA had 7 MPs, in the composition of 2016 there were only two MPs in the Assembly, and in 2020, 13,930 voters or 1.53% voted for this party, enough for one parliamentary term. In the local elections of 2017, DPA won 23 councilor seats and one mayoral post, and in these local elections DPA is running with 14 proposed candidates for mayors and 16 lists for councilors, including the councilor list for the City of Skopje.

5. The Republic of North Macedonia's 2021 local elections – Results, campaign, assessments

Introduction

The seventh local elections since independence were held on 17 October (first round) and 31 October (second round) 2021. The elections were conducted in 80 municipalities and the City of Skopje, where the mayors of the municipalities and the City of Skopje were voted according to the majority system, and the members of the councils were elected according to a proportional model. The sick, infirm, persons under house arrest and prisoners in the penitentiary institutions voted the day before each of the two rounds, i.e., on 16 and 30 October. 938 631 out of a total of 1 824 815 registered voters in the voter list went to the polls, bringing the turnout in the first round to 51.44%. In the second round of the elections, the turnout decreased to 49.65%. The turnout was lower compared to the last local elections in October 2017, where the turnout was 59.51% in the first round, and 51.92% in the second round. The turnout in these local elections was also lower than the turnout in the local elections in March 2013, which was 66.81% in the first round and 64.9% in the second round, and the turnout in the 2016 snap parliamentary elections, which was 66.79%, as well as the turnout in the 2020 snap early parliamentary elections, which was 52.06%.

The voting process was conducted by a three-tier election administration led by the State Election Commission (SEC) as an elected body with professional engagement, then the municipal election commissions formed at random from among the employees in the state, and municipal administration, as well as the administration of the City of Skopje, as non-professional bodies, and 3,384 election boards conducting the elections at the polling stations, as well as 88 special election boards set up to conduct early voting for COVID-19-positive voters and self-isolated voters.⁷⁰ A total of 299 candidates for mayors competed for 80 municipalities and the City of Skopje. In the second round of elections, mayors were voted in 43 municipalities and the City of Skopje. Independently or in coalitions, 24 political entities participated with their candidates for mayors, of which 5 coalitions: the SDSM-led coalition “The best for my municipality”, the VMRO-DPMNE-led coalition “Renewal of Macedonia” led by VMRO-

DPMNE, the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative, the coalition “Movement determined for change” and the Roma-Romeske coalition. The political parties that promoted their mayoral candidates independently were: the Left, DUI, Permanent Macedonian Radical Unification - TMRO, Integra, Rodina Makedonija, Macedonian Third Era/Macedonian Independent Lists, the political party - Democrats, Workers and Independents, DPA, Besa, Democratic Party of Turks of Macedonia, Bosniak Democratic Union, Your Party, Communist Party of Macedonia - Tito's Forces, Party of United Democrats of Macedonia - PODEM, Alternative, Civic Option for Macedonia - GROM, Movement for Democracy, Rights, Freedom and Movement for National Unity of Turks - DNET. A total of 572 lists of candidates for councilors from a total of 31 political entities were submitted for members of the municipal councils and the City of Skopje. In these elections, 25 independent candidates for mayor and 57 independent lists for councilors.

The local elections were announced on 6 August, which initiated the deadlines for their realization. The election campaign for the first round officially started on 27 September and lasted until 15 October at midnight. The campaign for the second round continued immediately after election day on 17 October and lasted until 29 October at midnight. The second round of local elections took place on 31 October. A total of 1,257 observers⁷¹, translators, international observers and foreign journalists were accredited to cover the 2021 local elections. The number of domestic observers in these elections was 871, and a total of 370 international observers and translators were accredited.

According to the OSCE/ODIHR Statement of Preliminary Findings and Conclusions for the first round of the 2021 local elections, the elections were held in a competitive spirit and the fundamental freedoms were widely respected. However, the statement said that numerous shortcomings in the legal framework underscore the need for comprehensive reform. It is also noted that the leading parliamentary parties enjoy systemic advantages, especially in terms of the allocation of public resources for campaigning, including the media.

The ODIHR Election Observation Mission assessed that the second round of the local elections⁷² was characterized by a competitive campaign in which the fundamental freedoms were respected, but with negative rhetoric and reports of intimidation of candidates and pressure on voters. The election administration made efforts to address the procedural shortcomings observed during the first round, so that the second round went smoothly, although some problems remained. The mission also notes shortcomings in handling complaints.

The elections drastically changed the ratio of mayoral seats between the two largest political parties, VMRO-DPMNE and SDSM. The SDSM-led coalition won 16 mayoral seats, which is 41 mayoral seats less than in the previous elections. The coalition led by VMRO-DPMNE won 42 mayoral seats, i.e., 37 more than in the previous elections. DUI won 11 mayoral seats, BESA, as well as the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative won two mayoral seats each, while DPA⁷³, GROM and the coalition “Determined for change” of LDP/DOM won one each, while 3 mayoral seats belonged to independent candidates in the municipalities of Kumanovo, Debarca and the City of Skopje.

Regarding the election of councillors in the municipalities, VMRO-DPMNE won a total of 469 council seats, SDSM - 402, DUI - 167, the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative - 81, the Left - 49, BESA - 36, the coalition “Determined for change” - 29, DPTM - 17, DPA - 9, the councillor list of DUI and Alliance for Albanians and Alternative, with which these parties ran together in the municipality of Chashka, won 4 council seats, TMRO - 3, GROM - 2, SRM - 2, PDT - 2, DNET - 2. DSR, United Macedonia, PODEM, BDS, DDPS and “Rom-Romeske” won one councillor each.

The independent candidates won a total of 67 council seats, of which: “For our Kumanovo” won 8 council seats, “Chance for Centar” - 3, “Differently” won 3 seats in the municipality of Bitola, “Green Human City” two seats in the Council of the City of Skopje, “For the protection of Karposh” - 2, “Better for Tetovo” - 2, “STIGA E - Front against the mine and environmental polluters” has an entry with one representative each in the councils of the three municipalities - Novo Selo, Bosilovo and Strumica. In addition to the mentioned municipalities, the independent lists included councilors in the municipalities of Bogdanci, Gevgelija, Debarca, Demir Kapija, Dolneni, Ilinden, Kavadarci, Kichevo, Kochani, Kratovo, Lipkovo, Lozovo, Makedonska Kamenica, Makedonski Brod, Mogila, Ohrid, Petrovec Pehchevo, Probishtip, Radovish, Rankovce, Sveti Nikole, Staro Nagorichane, Cheshinovo-Obleshevo and Chucher Sandevo.

The results of the local elections and the significant change in the ratio of mayors and councilors had a political impact at the national level as well. After receiving the initial results from the second round of local elections, the President of SDSM, and Prime Minister, Zoran Zaev said that he would take full responsibility for the bad results in the local elections and that he would resign as Prime Minister and President of SDSM. He congratulated the opposition on their victory, but added that a lot of money was seen coming to the opposition from abroad for political and economic reasons.⁷⁴ Since a few days after the announcement of his resignation, Prime Minister Zaev did not formally submit his resignation to the Parliament, on 5 November, VMRO-DPMNE leader Hristijan Mickovski announced that together with the coalition partners and the political parties Alliance of Albanians, Alternative, Besa and the Left collected 61 signatures for vote of no confidence in the Government.⁷⁵ At the request of the opposition, Parliament Speaker Talat Xhaferi scheduled a no-confidence vote for the government on 11 November. At the session, the opposition failed to vote no confidence due to lack of quorum after Besa MP Kastriot Rexhepi did not appear at the session.⁷⁶ MP Rexhepi said that his decision was guided "by the interests of Albanians and all citizens of the country who want peace, freedom and prosperity in the country and the continuation of the NATO and EU course."⁷⁷ The opposition made accusations of MP Kastriot Rexhepi being kidnapped by the government, while his political party BESA accused that Rexhepi's statement that the country did not need a new political crisis was in fact given against his will.⁷⁸ After the no-confidence vote, the political party BESA formally left the government, and the Prime Minister Zoran Zaev announced that they are in negotiations with the political party Alternative to increase the majority with four new MPs.⁷⁹ Additionally, SDSM announced that it would elect Zoran Zaev's successor on December 12.⁸⁰

Election Campaign

The campaign for the snap parliamentary elections began on 27 September and ended on 15 October at midnight. The campaign for the second round continued immediately after the election day on 17 October and lasted until 29 October until midnight. The second round of local elections took place on 31 October. Re-voting took place in one polling station in the municipality of Debar, and voting was postponed in the municipalities of Mavrovo and Rostushe, as well as in Centar Zupa, due to low turnout. The parties made extensive use of the usual methods of promotion, such as rallies, meetings with citizens, door-to-door campaigns, television commercials, including advertisements and promotion of candidacies on social media, participation in TV debates and billboards from the candidates. In addition to the growing focus on environmental issues, the main topics that prevailed in the election campaign were related to national and international politics such as the country's long-standing aspirations for EU membership and the continued delays in starting accession negotiations, the disagreements over how the government manages the COVID-19 pandemic, as well as the economic situation, especially the high unemployment rate and emigration.⁸¹ During the election campaign, there was an ongoing debate about the efficiency of gasification, illegal landfills, renewable energy sources for households, bicycle paths and urban greenery, as well as the environmental projects, including public transport models, promised by the mayoral candidates, especially for the larger cities and the capital City of Skopje.⁸²

According to the OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission, the campaign was assessed as active and generally calm despite isolated incidents. According to the mission, the COVID-19 pandemic affected the campaign, due to which participants had to abide by government security protocols for public gatherings. According to the OSCE/ODIHR, the fundamental rights and freedoms, such as the right of assembly and movement, were generally respected throughout the campaign, and participants were free to run campaign.⁸³ However, there have been more cases of negative rhetoric, often directed at election candidates. The use of such rhetoric was intensified during the campaign itself, despite the fact that the candidates pledged to adhere to the Code of Conduct for Fair and Democratic Elections, signed on 23 September.⁸⁴

The conclusion of the observation mission is that the elections were peaceful with a systemic advantage for the major parties, while the election days, including the vote count, received a positive overall assessment, despite frequent problems with biometric devices, group voting and some procedural errors in counting and tabulation. Problems with the secrecy of the ballot and widespread group voting were noted, which affected women's participation in the electoral process. Regarding the counting of votes, the preliminary report stated that it was positively assessed at most polling stations, highlighting the fact that the fingerprinting machines slowed down the voting. Additionally, what the observers noticed was unnecessary interference in the counting by the representatives of the participants in the elections.⁸⁵

Under the slogan "Macedonia for all people", the VMRO-DPMNE-led coalition "Renewal of Macedonia" promoted an election program titled "Create a New Future – Changes, Projects, Victories". The campaign generally focused on transparent, accountable and ecologically sound environments, as well as roads and communal infrastructure across municipalities. Additionally, the campaign for the Coalition "Renewal of Macedonia" promoted projects for investment in education, digitalization of local self-government, planned urbanization, as well as the end of illegal landfills, aimed at environmental protection. The online campaign of VMRO-DPMNE was conducted through the party's website, www.vmro-dpmne.org.mk, as well as through the official profiles of the mayoral candidates on the social networks Facebook and Twitter, where each candidate promoted one's program. The videos from the rallies and the meetings with the citizens, as well as the election music videos, apart from the social networks, were also published on the party's YouTube channel.⁸⁶ The independent candidate for mayor of the City of Skopje, Danela Arsovska, who was supported by VMRO-DPMNE, ran the campaign under the slogan "For modern Skopje" (www.zaskopje.mk). Her program focused on prioritizing current infrastructural problems, environmental mobility and free public transport, as well as investing in schools and youth. Additional areas of focus were also the economy, digital city, education and youth, green Skopje, sports and culture, social and health care, as well as fire prevention, as well as other natural disasters.

The SDSM-led coalition "The best for my municipality" promoted five principles in its program: (1) My Mayor, comprising projects to introduce a digital system enabling direct contact between the mayor and councillors with the citizens, as well as constant, fast, efficient exchange of information on services provided by the local self-government; (2) humane urbanization and planned construction with protection of the public interest in accordance with the constitutional principles for humane living and respect for private property; (3) green agenda, (4) economic development as well as (5) infrastructural investments. SDSM's online campaign was conducted through the party's website, www.sdsm.org.mk, the website www.najdobroto.mk⁸⁷, as well as the official profiles of the mayoral candidates on the social networks Facebook and Twitter. The videos from the rallies and the meetings with the citizens were published not only on the social networks but also on the party's YouTube channel.

In these elections, DUI ran the campaign with the slogan "Choose life, vote green" as part of the new green agenda of the party. DUI promoted projects for quality of life followed by reasons why the Democratic Union for Integration should be voted for, emphasizing the 19 years of proven knowhow in the work of its professional staff. DUI's election campaign was aimed at developing and modernizing municipalities with greater citizen involvement. The mayoral candidates, for the most part, promoted modern infrastructure, clean and cheap energy for all citizens, creation of sustainable jobs to stimulate the economy and even "greener" municipalities.⁸⁸ In addition to the field activities, DUI conducted the election campaign through the official profiles of the mayoral candidates on Facebook, the website www.bdi.mk, as well as the official party profile on the social network Facebook.

The focus of the Alliance for Albanians/Alternativa coalition was on improving the everyday problems faced by citizens. Part of the pre-election promises of this coalition were the infrastructure and communal problems with additional focus on education, urbanism, sports and culture, i.e. the social problems of the citizens, in order to prevent the emigration of young people.⁸⁹ In addition to meetings with citizens, the campaign was conducted through the parties' websites www.aleanca.eu and www.alternativa.mk, the social networks Facebook and Twitter and through the official party profiles of the mayoral candidates.

The political party BESA Movement ran the campaign with the motto "With a heart for" putting a significant focus on the municipalities of Tetovo and Gostivar. BESA's program priorities for these elections included activities aimed at creating a functional and transparently governed municipality granting citizens the right to co-govern. BESA promised a new development model of urban and rural municipalities with a

The Left party ran the campaign with the slogan "Municipalities for the People" with a focus on increased party participation in the municipal councils. In its election program, the Left promoted direct democracy, local self-government, local economic development and infrastructure, ecology and sustainable development, communal care and public services, and control and oversight of the public interest.⁹¹ In addition to meetings with citizens, the campaign was conducted mostly through the party's Facebook page, the official website of the party www.levica.mk, as well as through the official party profiles of the candidates on Facebook and Twitter. The recordings of the events, the meetings with the citizens and the promotion of the candidates were done through the social networks and the party's YouTube channel.

The coalition of the LDP and DOM ran the campaign under the slogan "Movement determined for change", promoting digital open municipalities and a green agenda as two postulates in the election program of this movement. The focus was on the needs for a healthy and quality life, as well as the digitalization of municipalities and life in modern day environments.⁹² In addition to the field activities, the LDP/DOM campaign was conducted through the parties' websites www.ldp.mk and www.dom.org.mk, as well as through the official profiles of the mayoral candidates on the social network Facebook. The election music video clips, apart from the social networks, were also published on the YouTube channel of the parties.

The Bosniak Democratic Union party, which ran independently in these local elections for the first time, made clear commitments in its program for a quick solution to the pollution in the capital, new boulevards, streets and roads, as well as solutions that will contribute to human development.⁹³ In addition to meetings with citizens, the candidates from this party conducted the campaign through the official profile of the party on the social network Facebook.

The first financial report with a form for received donations covers the first 10 days of the election campaign, and the parties and coalitions were obliged to submit it on the eleventh day of the election campaign, i.e., on 7 October by 24:00. The second report with a form for received donations covers the second half of the election campaign, and the parties and coalitions were obliged to submit it one day after the end of the election campaign, i.e., on 16 October for the first and 30 October for the second round.⁹⁹ The third financial report covers the revenues and expenditures from the day of opening the transaction account of the parties until the end of the first election round. According to the ratio of received and spent funds of the entities that spent the most funds for the campaign, it can be noticed that the political entities spent more funds than they collected. Out of the ten reviewed reports, in five there was an excess of expenditures compared to revenues. In the remaining five political entities, the funds spent for the election campaign did not exceed the revenues.

During the analysis of the financial statements submitted by the political entities, some of the reports were noticed to be incomplete. It is also noticeable that not all political entities submitted all four financial statements provided for in the Electoral Code. The stipulated deadline was not observed either, i.e, some of the political entities submitted the reports a few days after the end of the legal deadline. Transparency of election campaign financing is an additional challenge as reports are published in scanned formats that are not machine-readable, have poor visibility and cannot be searched in their content.

Media

The monitoring of the media coverage related to the elections took place from the moment the elections were announced, and during the campaign before the two rounds of voting, which was conducted by the Agency for Audio and Audio-visual Media Services - AAVMS, a body legally responsible for monitoring the electronic media in the elections. process.¹⁰⁴ The monitoring of the media coverage in the period from the announcement of the elections until the beginning of the campaign, according to AAVMS, indicates that most media respected the journalistic standards and enabled presentation of various views on current political and social topics and issues. At the same time, the agency has not recorded any violations of the limits for paid political advertising. Additionally, AAVMS states that this election process, as well as the previous ones, requires changes in the election regulations in the area of paid political advertising because the current regulations do not provide equal conditions for access to all participants in the election process. The AAVMS also states that positive, but still limiting, changes have been made in determining the prices for paid political advertising (PPA), since they are calculated on the basis of prices from the last five election processes, and not on current economic parameters.¹⁰⁵ According to the AAVMS, in the period of the campaign before the first round of voting, several media outlets, contrary to the Electoral Code, broadcast paid political advertising involving minors.¹⁰⁶

During the first round of the campaign, in the period from 27 September to 15 October, the Agency notes that in the area of paid political advertising, equal conditions for access of all participants in the election process were not provided. It is also noted that many of the private media organized numerous debate confrontations but the selection of candidates for the TV debates in these media remained at the discretion of the editors. However, the national media enabled a number of smaller parties and several independent candidates to present their political platforms.

For the period before the second round of voting from 18 to 29 October, the Agency concluded that, as expected, the range of paid political advertising compared to the first round was much lower. In the second round of the election campaign, no violations of the limits for paid political advertising were found.¹⁰⁷

During the first round, two complaints were submitted to the AAVMS regarding the Guidelines, concerning which list submitters could use the time of 1 minute per real-time broadcast on radio and television for paid political advertising. The first complaint was from the political party Left, which in its reaction considered that only they and the DPA have the right to this 1 minute, adding that with a more extensive interpretation, the Besa Movement and the coalition “Movement determined for change” can enter in this category as well, because they had informed the President of the Assembly of the Republic of North Macedonia with a letter that they would act as “independent MPs” in the elections. The second complaint was from the LDP, according to which only the political parties LDP, the Left, Besa and DPA are entitled to this 1 minute, because the MPs from the parliamentary parties GROM, VMRO-NP and the parties of the Turks in Macedonia were part of the parliamentary groups of SDSM and of VMRO-DPMNE.¹⁰⁸

Regarding the programme services of the public broadcasting service MRT, according to the AAVMS report, they complied with the legal requirements for the structure of daily news programs, in relation to broadcasting debates and free political presentation. The first program service - MRT1 provided information on the election process for people with sensory disabilities as well. The parliamentary channel broadcast free political representation of several participants in the elections, scheduling the time according to the legal provisions. The Agency concludes that the programs of the public service MRTV and the Parliamentary Channel have fulfilled the election campaign obligation to provide free political representation of the participants in the elections. According to the observation data, on MRT 1, such an opportunity for free representation was used by 12 candidates for mayors and four holders of councillor lists in the municipalities. On MRT2, this opportunity was used by four participants in the election process: Hamdi Sulejmani, nominated by a group of voters, then the candidates of the Alliance for Albanians and Alternative coalition, as well as the candidates of Besa and DPA.¹⁰⁹ In contrast, commercial broadcasters did not cover the campaign in accordance with the principles of equality for the candidates. The report indicates that the newsrooms covered the election campaign mostly following the expectations from the general political experience for the election processes so far, giving priority to the duel between SDSM - VMRO DPMNE and their coalition partners. Information for people with sensory disabilities was provided by MRT 1 and TV 24 Vesti.¹¹⁰ The subject of monitoring of the public service were the first programme service MRT1, the second programme service MRT2 and the Macedonian Radio - first programme service MR1.

The OSCE/ODIHR EOM also monitored the media coverage of the local elections. A preliminary statement from the first round said that the overall election coverage had a neutral tone, with the two largest parties dominating the news on the monitored national broadcasters.¹²⁰ Regarding the second round, the mission found that the monitored broadcasters provided voters with sufficient information about candidates using a generally neutral tone. The mission notes that although national media outlets reported on smaller parties and independent candidates, the Electoral Code placed them in a subordinate position, contrary to OSCE recommendations and international good practice.¹²¹ trustees for these two municipalities.¹²⁵ Following the objection of the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternativa, the Administrative Court decided to have a re-run for mayor and councilor lists at one polling station in the municipality of Debar, because the total number of registered voters at that polling station affected the overall results at the level of municipality of Debar.¹²⁶ However, despite the re-run, none of the mayoral candidates managed to secure the required percentage of the total number of citizens who went to the polls, after which there was a third round, i.e., the election for mayor in Debar was held on 14 November, where DUI's candidate, Hekuran Duka, won. Additionally, for the same reasons, there was a re-run of the voting from the first round at one polling station in Shuto Orizari for members of the council, and members of the Council for the City of Skopje after the decision passed by the Administrative Court.¹²⁷

In the second round of elections, mayors were voted in 43 municipalities and the City of Skopje.

In addition to the mentioned municipalities, the independent lists included councilors in the municipalities of Bogdanci, Gevgelija, Debarca, Demir Kapija, Dolneni, Ilinden, Kavadarci, Kicevo, Kocani, Kratovo, Lipkovo, Lozovo, Makedonska Kamenica, Makedonski Brod, Mogila, Ohrid, Petrovec Pehchevo, Probistip, Radovich, Rankovce, Sveti Nikole, Staro Nagoricane, Cheshinovo-Obleshevo and Chucher Sandevo.

Protection of voting rights

The Electoral Code guarantees the protection of the voting rights. According to the Electoral Code, all submitters of candidate lists and all voters have the right to file a complaint with the State Election Commission if they consider their right has been violated. Complaints by submitters of lists may relate to the voting procedure, the tabulation and the determination of the results, while voters may file a complaint if they think their right to vote has been violated in the procedure. The procedure considering the protection of the voting right is an urgent procedure, due to which the complaint and appeal cannot be submitted by mail.

Submitters of list have to file their complaints to the SEC within 48 hours after the end of the voting, i.e. after the announcement of the initial results, and the SEC is obliged to make a decision within 48 hours after receiving the complaint. The SEC notifies the complainant about the decision via e-mail, and the decision will be considered to have been submitted five hours after the e-mail is sent. Complainants whose complaint is rejected by the SEC have the right to file an appeal to the Administrative Court within 24 hours after receiving the decision. The Court must make a decision within 60 hours after receiving the appeal. The Administrative Court can confirm or change the decision of the SEC, whereby its decisions are final, i.e. no appeal or other type of legal remedy can be filed against them.

In case of violation of the voting rights, the voter can submit a complaint to the SEC within 24 hours, and the SEC is obliged to make a decision within 4 hours after receiving it. An appeal against the decision of the SEC can be submitted to the Administrative Court within 24 hours after receiving the decision. If the deadlines are met during the voting process, and the decision is positive for the voter, he/she will be allowed to exercise his/her right to vote.¹³⁰

For the two rounds of local elections, a total of 1,053 complaints about the voting procedure were submitted to the State Election Commission. Most of them, 989, were complaints filed by citizens related to the protection of the right to vote. In addition, 27 complaints were filed for protection of the voting right of an authorized submitter for the procedure of summarizing and determining results. 35 complaints were filed for protection of the voting right of an authorized submitter for the voting procedure. Two complaints were filed for non-compliance with the provisions on the activities and duration of the election campaign. The State Election Commission accepted 392 complaints, refused 103 and rejected 56. 29 complaints were withdrawn, and the rest are still unopened or pending. The OSCE/ODIHR¹³¹ EOM noted that the SEC did not meet deadlines for reviewing complaints, and that the SEC's electronic complaints system was not constantly updated, affecting public information and the transparency of the process.

¹³¹ OSCE/ODIHR, 2021.

Out of the total number of 1053 complaints, before the first round of elections, until 15 October, 23 complaints were submitted to the SEC, of which 17 were accepted. Most of these complaints were filed by citizens, for protection of the right to vote, most often related to the inability of the sick and weak to vote, as well as people infected with the Covid-19 virus. On the day of the elections in the first round, over 300 complaints were submitted by citizens¹³², mostly for not being able to find their names on the voter list.¹³³

Before the start of the second round, voters filed an additional 122 complaints about their voting rights and voting from home. Additionally, after the first round, the SEC reviewed and rejected 14 complaints, of which 2 for violation of the pre-election silence and 12 complaints for the results.¹³⁴ After the second round, complaints were filed by the Permanent Macedonian Radical Union TMRO, Democratic Union for Integration - DUI and Enver Pajaziti Group of Voters. The objections of TMRO and Enver Pajaziti Group of Voters were rejected by the commission. DUI's objections were also rejected, with the exception of the objection to Polling Station 2107 in the municipality of Zelino, whereby the commission annulled the voting at this polling station.¹³⁵

A total of 50 complaints (almost 5% of the total of 1,053 complaints) were filed by political parties for voting rights of an authorized submitter for the voting procedure. The complaints from the parties were mostly about family voting, lack of persons on the voter list and group voting. SDSM with the coalition and the Alliance for Albanians filed 10 complaints each, VMRO-DPMNE and the coalition 8 complaints, DUI and TMRO 7 each, the Left 5, Your Party and the Democratic Party of Turks of Macedonia (DPTM) 3 complaints each, and the Movement Determined for Change and the group of voters Enver Pajaziti submitted 2 complaints.¹³⁶

For the first round of the elections, the Administrative Court received a total of 28 lawsuits, and one lawsuit of VMRO-DPMNE was accepted for bribing voters in the elections for members of the Council of the City of Skopje, at polling station 2461 in the municipality of Saraj. The Administrative Court accepted two more lawsuits by the Alliance of Albanians and Alternative and the Movement Determined for Change. By accepting the lawsuit of the Alliance of Albanians and Alternative, the results of the voting at the polling station 0543 in Debar with 777 voters were annulled, which could determine the winner of the elections. Regarding the lawsuit of the Movement Determined for Change, the results from the polling station 2957/1 in the municipality of Shuto Orizari were annulled.¹³⁷ Following such decisions of the administrative court, a re-run for the first round was held in these polling stations.

In the second round, 16 lawsuits were filed, of which only the lawsuit of BESA was accepted regarding the acceptance of DUI's complaint by the SEC for Polling Station 2107 in the municipality of Zelino. The court ruled that there would be no re-run at this polling station, confirming the victory of BESA candidate Blerim Sejdi.¹³⁸

Based on the SCPC's competencies to monitor the legality of the election campaign financing, the SCPC received 30 complaints from citizens and political parties. One complaint for abuse of state financial support was filed by VMRO-DPMNE and the coalition. SDSM and the coalition also filed a complaint with the SCPC against the independent candidate Maksim Dimitrievski for violating the Electoral Code and enabling a large number of billboards. The Left also filed a complaint against the independent candidate Danela Arsovska, for violating the Electoral Code Article 71 related to fundraising for the election campaign, Article 75 e and f (ratio of media presence) and 67-e paragraph 5 (spending of financial funds for paid political advertising provided from the state budget). The SCPC rejected all three objections.¹³⁹ Following the decision of the SCPC, VMRO-DPMNE submitted a lawsuit to the Administrative Court, which was also rejected.¹⁴⁰

Evaluation of the local elections by the observers

A total of 1,257 observers¹⁴¹, translators, international observers and foreign journalists were accredited to cover the 2021 local elections. This is less by 4,825 observers compared to the local elections in 2017 when a total of 6,082 observers were accredited, of which 5,609 domestic and 473 foreign observers.¹⁴²

The number of domestic observers in these elections was 871. The most represented of them were the observers of the Civil Organization AXIOS 2017 Skopje whose number was 529 observers. Following them were the Association of Citizens CIVIL - Centre for Freedom Skopje with 284 observers, the Association for Affirmation of Human Values and Youth Integration Mak-Sonce - Skopje with 31 observers, the Institute for Economic Strategies and International Relations Ohrid - Skopje with 12 observers, the National Roma Centrum with 10 observers, Civic Prevention "Prevention during elections" with 4 and the Association of Young European Federalists - JEF North Macedonia with 1 observer.

The number of accredited international observers and translators for the 2021 local elections was 370, of which 218 from the OSCE/ODIHR - Special Election Assessment Mission. The US Embassy in Skopje had 15 observers and 38 translators, the British Embassy in Skopje - 7 observers, the French Embassy in the Republic of North Macedonia - 6 observers and 5 translators, the Italian Embassy - 4 observers and 4 translators, the Hungarian Embassy - 6 observers, the Albanian Embassy - 5 observers, IFES - 5 observers, the Embassy of the Kingdom of the Netherlands - 4 observers, the Embassy of the Russian Federation - 4 observers, the Embassy of the Czech Republic - 3 observers, the Embassy of the Republic of Croatia - 3 observers, the Central Election Commission of Bosnia and Herzegovina - 3 observers, the Embassy of the Republic of Kosovo - 3 observers, the Embassy of the Republic of Bulgaria - 2 observers, the Embassy of the Kingdom of Spain - 2 observers, the Embassy of the Hellenic Republic - 2 observers, the Central Election Commission of Latvia - 2 observers, the Austrian Embassy - 2 observers, and the Embassy of the Kingdom of Belgium in Sofia had 1 observer.¹⁴³

There were also 10 accredited foreign journalists that were covering the elections. Al Jazeera Balkans - Skopje correspondent had 6 journalists, Turkish Radio Television 3 journalists and Voice of America 1 accredited journalist.

In a statement on the OSCE/ODIHR preliminary findings and conclusions for the first round,¹⁴⁴ the elections were held in a competitive spirit and fundamental freedoms were widely respected. However, the statement said that numerous shortcomings in the legal framework underscore the need for comprehensive reform of the electoral system. It is noted that the leading parliamentary parties enjoy systemic advantages, especially in terms of the allocation of public resources for campaigning. It is also stated that the late implementation of biometric voter identification has created additional challenges in the conduct of the elections. Transparency has been improved by publishing the voting information throughout the day, along with preliminary results for each polling station on election night. Adoption of a number of amendments to the Electoral Code without public debate or consultation with key stakeholders relating to these elections is deemed contrary to international practice. However, they are said to have contributed to the implementation of certain previous OSCE/ODIHR recommendations, such as defining the term of office of State Election Commission members, and allowing citizens whose ID cards expired after the election was announced to vote.

In these elections, biometric voter identification was used for the first time, without conducting a pilot project or testing. According to the OSCE/ODIHR Statement, the short timeframe for implementation prevented the SEC from promptly adopting relevant bylaws, procedures, training and voter education. Nevertheless, most of the interlocutors of the ODIHR international observation mission, including the political parties, welcomed the introduction of biometric voter identification as an effective means of preventing electoral fraud.

According to the OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission, the candidate registration process was comprehensive with a total of 299 registered candidates for mayor and 571 councilor lists with 10,649 candidates. Although women made up about 45 percent of all councilor candidates in accordance with the legal obligation for equal gender representation, and held 111 lists, only 8 percent of mayoral candidates were women. Issues related to gender equality and women's rights were largely absent from candidates' platforms and speeches, and women were underrepresented in party campaigns.

The OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission noted isolated cases of intimidation of candidates, but also allegations of pressure on certain candidates to withdraw from the election process, as well as some credible allegations of voter pressure and vote-buying.

Media monitoring conducted by the OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission found that election coverage was neutral. It was established that during the official campaign period, the two largest parties dominated the news on national broadcasters. It is noted that the Electoral Code still affects the content of the news on the public service - MRT. The mission also notes that the inadequate regulation for allocation of state funds intended for advertising to broadcasters has given a significant advantage to certain parliamentary parties in the print and online media, contrary to OSCE commitments and good practice.

Election day was generally calm, and EOM observers gave a positive assessment of the opening process and voting at polling stations observed. Voting procedures and protection measures against COVID-19 were generally followed. However, observers noted frequent problems with biometric identification devices and scanners of voters' fingerprints. Most polling boards have been found to have overcome such problems in a professional manner.

The Statement on the Preliminary Findings and Conclusions of the OSCE / ODIHR Mission on the Second Round of the Local Elections¹⁴⁵ confirms that there was a competitive campaign in which fundamental freedoms were respected. However, compared to the first round, negative rhetoric and reports of intimidation of candidates and voter pressure have caused potential setbacks to the overall process. The mission notes that the election administration made efforts to address the procedural shortcomings observed during the first round, and that the second round of elections proceeded smoothly with some restrictions, most notably on complaints.

The OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission assessed that the second round was competitive, and that candidates were generally free to campaign and convey messages. However, the cases with negative rhetoric affected the general atmosphere, while the main parties attacked each other. The mission did not observe the run-off election in a systematic or comprehensive manner, but mission members visited a limited number of polling stations. The voting process at the polling stations that were visited was assessed as well-organized, transparent and peaceful, with isolated incidents, and violations of the secrecy of the ballot in several cases.

The civic organization CIVIL Center for Freedom¹⁴⁶ assessed that the election process was generally conducted in a peaceful manner and in a democratic atmosphere. Late changes in legislation, unequal gender representation and uneven media coverage are some of the key remarks on the election process. In addition, they point out that some of their observers were hampered in their work in the first round and that election board members were insufficiently familiar with the procedures.

Evaluation of the elections by the participants

After the closing of the polls in the first and second rounds, the political parties and the independent candidates gave their views on the course of the election day.

After the voting in the first round, the Secretary General of SDSM and head of the Central Election Headquarters, Ljupco Nikolovski, congratulated the institutions because, as he said, they managed to conduct fair, free and democratic elections.¹⁴⁷ He also stressed that the Macedonian democracy had a peaceful, dignified and a European election day. In a statement to the media, Nikolovski said that the positive atmosphere throughout the campaign was rounded off on 17 October with a peaceful election day, although several isolated minor deviations were noticed, which were acted upon immediately. He estimates that challenges have arisen with the fingerprint voting. Nikolovski reminds that voting with a fingerprint was a condition set by VMRO-DPMNE in order to vote for the Electoral Code, and that they, as a democratic party, have accepted it in order to have even more credible election results, and to leave no space for anyone to dispute them.

After receiving the initial results of the second-round voting¹⁴⁸ in the local elections, at a press conference, the President of SDSM and Prime Minister Zoran Zaev took full responsibility for the poor results and the defeat in the local elections, and announced his resignation from the position of Prime Minister and President of SDSM. He congratulated the opposition on its victory and said that a lot of money was visible coming to the opposition from abroad for political and economic reasons, and that the opposition received part of the money from domestic businessmen for personal financial interests in the future. Zaev pointed out that there was no need for new early parliamentary elections and that he would remain prime minister until the new government from the progressive majority was reorganized.

On the part of VMRO-DPMNE, at the first press conference after the voting in the first round of local elections, MP Mile Lefkov accused the government of a series of election irregularities, but also expressed optimism that the results would be favourable after the vote count.¹⁴⁹ According to him, the government in the country is a bunch of people immersed in crime and corruption. Consequently, according to VMRO-DPMNE, there were noticeable irregularities, disruptions of the election process and corrupt actions of the government. Lefkov pointed out that just before the voting day, they noticed violations of the election silence, intimidation, pressure and blackmail by holders of public office, ministers, as well as misuse of state resources for party purposes. Additionally, he expressed suspicion of bribery in Prilep, Veles, Bitola, Delchevo, Demir Kapija, Negotino, Ohrid, as well as parts of Skopje. He also accused of a brutal physical attack on a journalist and media workers in Prilep, and stated that they had information about a Bulgarian train case, and information about stuffing boxes in Saraj, which the party complained about. However, he stressed that the party's expectations are that the people had recognized the chance, and that the elections brought changes.

The leader of VMRO-DPMNE, Hristijan Mickoski, shortly after the announcement of the initial unofficial results from the second round¹⁵⁰ of the local elections, declared a convincing victory and announced the beginning of the change for a better Macedonia. He thanked the coalition partners, but also the political parties that supported them, such as Alternative, the Alliance of Albanians and the Left. Mickoski pointed out that it was a sign of the formation of a strong opposition bloc, and that it would bring a huge victory in the next parliamentary elections, which are very likely to be early.

The leader of DUI, Ali Ahmeti, said after the first round of voting that the elections went well and thanked the loyal voters who chose DUI's agenda¹⁵¹. After the second round of the local elections¹⁵², DUI's spokesperson and Foreign Minister, Bujar Osmani, said that DUI was the winner of the local elections, and that the party had won in 10 municipalities. In his statement, he emphasised that it was not the time at that moment for new early parliamentary elections, but added that if these had been parliamentary elections, DUI would have won 18 seats.

At a press conference after the first round of the local elections, the leader of the Alliance for Albanians, Zijadin Sela, announced that the party retained the mayoral post in Gostivar, and at the same time was in a leading position in Debar. He thanked all the citizens who had the courage to express their voice, and made accusations of blackmail, pressure and bribery.¹⁵³ The Secretary General of the party and candidate for mayor of Gostivar, Arben Taravari after the announcement of the victory for mayor in Gostivar in the second round¹⁵⁴ said that the party had defeated DUI in Gostivar with over 5,000 votes difference, and expressed hope that negotiations for a new parliamentary majority and a new government will begin immediately, because SDSM and DUI no longer had credibility.

The leader of Besa, Bilal Kasami, after the announcement of the victory in Tetovo in the second round, said that there was a lot of work ahead to realize the promised projects and thanked everyone who voted for him. He stressed that the splendour, the life and the pride of Tetovo would return. Following the second round of elections, after the decision of the State Election Commission for re-election in the municipality of Zelino, which met with a sharp reaction from the party's secretary general and government minister, Arianit Hoxha, he expressed dissatisfaction with the decision and said it could bring down the government.

The leader of the Left, Dimitar Apasiev, at a press conference after the announcement of some of the initial results from the first round of local elections said that these elections made the opposition ambience in the country visible, and that he was satisfied with the election result achieved by the party in this election, as well as with the increase in the number of votes won. He said that they as a party had achieved the goal, but that the general tendency to keep the leftist ambience on the rise in the country was also important. Apasiev stressed that Zaev's hybrid regime was coming to an end and that the opposition tendencies were evident, with a good chance for parliamentary elections after the local ones.¹⁵⁵

Statements for the media after the first round of the local elections were given by some of the independent candidates who won the elections alone or with the support of political parties. The independent candidate for mayor of Skopje Danela Arsovska, who was supported by the opposition VMRO-DPMNE after the victory in the second round of elections, thanked the people of Skopje for their support and said that she would immediately start implementing her projects. During the campaign, Arsovska accused SDSM of a black campaign and of telling lies about her and her family, stating that no one should be subject to edited, forged and produced videos.¹⁵⁶ She mentioned that in the second round of these elections, her opponent was not only Petre Shilegov from SDSM but also the outgoing Prime Minister Zoran Zaev.¹⁵⁷

The independent candidate for mayor of Kumanovo, Maksim Dimitrievski, after the announcement of the initial results from the second round, declared a great victory. He said that despite the good results against the major political parties, they still faced great pressure, making certain accusations of police abuse and intertwined relations between the police and the ruling political parties.¹⁵⁸ In the municipality of Debrca, the independent mayoral candidate Zoran Nogaceski, who won the second round, said that the citizens of the municipality had declared their willingness to continue the policies of the local self-government. He thanked the citizens of Debarca and announced that he would work exclusively in their interest.¹⁵⁹

A typical characteristic of these elections was the significant number of voter lists resulting from civil movements, with a significant focus on green policies. One of them was the candidate for mayor of the City of Skopje, Ana Petrovska, who was supported by the civil initiative Green Human City, which also had a list of councillors for the Council of the City of Skopje. In a statement to the media, she expressed her dissatisfaction with the way these elections were organized and conducted. Petrovska added that they received information from their field observers about numerous irregularities, improvisations and inadequate interpretation of the Electoral Code.¹⁶⁰ She added that the process of transforming Skopje into a green humane city had begun.

Conclusions

held in a competitive atmosphere with respect for the fundamental freedoms, but with predominantly negative rhetoric, especially in the second round. The turnout in the first round was 51.44%, and in the second round 49.65%, which is a decrease compared to the turnout in the 2017 local elections. The campaign for the first round of the elections began on 27 September and ended on 15 October at midnight, while the campaign for the second round continued immediately after election day on 17 October, and ended on 29 October at midnight. During the election campaign, the parties were enabled to conduct their campaigns freely, and the freedom of assembly, association and expression was respected. The OSCE/ODIHR Election Observation Mission pointed a number of shortcomings in the legal framework indicating the need for comprehensive reform, and noted that the leading parliamentary parties enjoyed systemic advantages, especially in terms of the allocation of public campaign resources, which includes the media. These elections were characterized by the increased focus on environmental issues, as well as the significant number of independent mayoral candidates and councilor lists.

The financial reports on the funds spent in the campaign before the first and second round of local elections submitted to the SEC, SAO and SCPC, point to the conclusion that most participants, such as VMRO-DPMNE, DUI, a group of voters Danela Arsovska, BESA, a group of voters Maksim Dimitrievski, spent more funds than they raised. The ten largest parties, coalitions and independent candidates spent a total of 313,026,558 denars (5,097,524 euros) on the campaign, and collected a total of 288,710,634 denars (4,694,482 euros). The most money was spent by the VMRO-DPMNE-led coalition, and the most money was collected through donations and membership fees by the SDSM-led coalition.

The results of the local elections in 2021 completely changed the distribution of mayors between VMRO-DPMNE and SDSM. The SDSM-led coalition won 16 mayoral seats, which is 41 mayoral seats less than in the previous elections. The coalition led by VMRO-DPMNE won 42 mayoral seats, i.e., 37 more than in the previous elections. DUI won 11 mayoral seats, BESA won two mayoral seats, as well as the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative, and one each by DPA, GROM and the coalition "Determined for change" of LDP/DOM, while 3 mayoral seats belonged to independent candidates in the municipalities of Kumanovo, Debarca and the City of Skopje. VMRO-DPMNE won a total of 469 council seats, SDSM - 402, DUI - 167, the coalition Alliance for Albanians and Alternative - 81, the Left - 49, BESA - 36, the coalition "Determined for change" - 29, DPTM - 17, DPA - 9, the Councilor list of DUI and the Alliance for Albanians and Alternative, which these parties participated together with in the municipality of Chaska, won 4 council seats, TMRO - 3, GROM - 2, SRM - 2, PDT - 2, DNET - 2. One council seat each was won by DSR, United Macedonia, Podem, BDS, DDPS and "Rom-Romeske". The independent lists won a total of 67 council seats.

According to the monitoring of the AAVMS, the analysed broadcasting services at the national level made certain efforts to provide media coverage. In addition to being covered in daily newscasts, almost all media outlets reserved more special news programmes for the participants. The programme services of the Public Broadcasting Service MRT complied with the legal requirements for the structure of daily news programs, while the commercial broadcasting companies did not cover the campaign in accordance with the principles of equality. The AAVMS points out the need for new changes in the election regulations in the area of paid political advertising because the allowed limits for advertising are still unclear, and are interpreted differently, and do not provide equal conditions for access to all participants. It was additionally pointed out that the distribution of budget funds is still not fair, and that it only goes in favor of the largest parliamentary parties in power and the opposition.

A total of 1,053 complaints were filed with the State Election Commission, of which 989 were filed by citizens related to the protection of the right to vote. The political parties submitted a total of 50 complaints. SDSM with the coalition Alternative and the Alliance for Albanians filed 10 complaints each, VMRO-DPMNE and the coalition 8 complaints, DUI and TMRO 7 each, the Left 5, Your Party and the Democratic Party of Turks of Macedonia (DPTM) 3 complaints each, while the movement "Determined for change" and a group of voters Enver Pajaziti submitted 2 negotiations each. The Administrative Court accepted three lawsuits filed by BESA, the Alliance of Albanians and Alternative and the "Determined for change" movement. By accepting BESA's lawsuit, the Administrative Court determined that there will be no re-run at one polling station in Zelino, which confirmed the victory of the BESA candidate, Blerim Sejdi. The Administrative Court accepted two more lawsuits by the Alliance of Albanians and Alternative and the "Determined for change" movement. By accepting the lawsuit of the Alliance of Albanians and Alternative, the results of the voting at the polling station 0543 in Debar were annulled. Regarding the lawsuit of the "Determined for change" movement, the results from the polling station 2957/1 in the municipality of Shuto Orizari were annulled. The complaints filed in the first and second rounds did not contribute to changes in the election results.

The political parties gave different assessments of the elections. The ruling SDSM assessed that the elections were fair and democratic with certain challenges related to the fingerprint voting. For the second round of the elections, SDSM accused the opposition of receiving finances from abroad. The opposition VMRO-DPMNE accused of a series of irregularities, disruption of the election process and corrupt actions of the government. They made accusations of violating the election silence, intimidation, pressure and blackmail by public officials, ministers, as well as misuse of state resources for party purposes. DUI assessed that the elections went well. The Alliance for Albanians accused of blackmail, pressure and bribery. The political party BESA reacted sharply to the decision of the SEC for the re-election in the municipality of Zelino, indicating that it may be the reason for them to withdraw from the Government.

The results of the local elections had an impact on a national level. Shortly after the election, the opposition parties announced they had a new parliamentary majority, and a no-confidence vote for the government was scheduled. The session failed due to lack of quorum of one MP. In the period following the end of the first and second rounds, the expired mayors handed over their functions to the newly elected mayors, and the mandates of the new members of the councils in the municipalities and in the City of Skopje were verified.

Electoral archives of the elections in the Republic of North Macedonia since 1990

6. Electoral archives of the elections in the Republic of North Macedonia since 1990

Since March 2016, the Konrad Adenauer Foundation, with its representative office in the Republic of North Macedonia, and the Institute for Democracy “Societas Civilis” – Skopje (IDSCS) have been implementing the joint project “Electoral Archives of the Elections in the Republic of North Macedonia since 1990”, with the goal of enabling comprehensive monitoring of the election processes in the Republic of North Macedonia since 1990. This project encompasses all elections since 1990: presidential, parliamentary and local, gathering all the available documents related to the election processes.

The need for implementing a project of this kind derives from the lack of official state archives with all the documents and data related to the election cycles since the independence of the Republic of North Macedonia. The Electoral Archives groups the documents in 7 sections:

1. Documents for Calling Elections
2. Voter List
3. Candidate Lists
4. Election Results
5. Election Reports
6. Reports from International and Domestic Monitoring Organizations
7. Electoral Code

The Electoral Archives are updated elections, and all relevant documents are attached in each of the listed sections. A crucial component of the Election Archive are the manuals for presidential, parliamentary and local elections prepared during the election period. These manuals are published in cooperation by the Konrad Adenauer Foundation and the Institute for Democracy „Societas Civilis” - Skopje.

So far, seven manuals have been compiled: for the local elections in 2013 and 2017, the presidential elections in 2014 and 2019, and the parliamentary elections in 2014, 2016 and in 2020. All manuals are available on the website of the Election Archive (izbornaarhiva.mk) in Macedonian, Albanian and English.
