TIMELINE OF THE POLITICAL TRANSITION AND THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

(DECEMBER 2024 – SEPTEMEBR 2026)

8 Dec 2024

The Assad regime falls as opposition forces enter Damascus, ending more than five decades of Ba'athist rule.

10 Dec 2024

Mohammed al-Bashir is appointed caretaker Prime Minister to ensure administrative continuity until 1 March 2025.

29 Jan 2025

The Victory Conference proclaims Ahmed al-Sharaa President for the transitional period, suspends the 2012 Constitution, and dissolves the People's Assembly, the Ba'ath Party, the army and security agencies, and all revolutionary factions.

25 Feb 2025

The National Dialogue Conference convenes some 600 participants and calls for an interim legislature, a constitutional declaration, and the preservation of state institutions.

2 Mar 2025

The Syrian Presidency announces the formation of an expert committee tasked with drafting the Constitutional Declaration.

10 Mar 2025

President al-Sharaa and SDF commander Mazloum Abdi sign an agreement to integrate the northeast's civil and military institutions into the Syrian state.

13 Mar 2025

The Constitutional Declaration establishes a five-year transition with a People's Assembly with two-thirds indirectly elected and one-third appointed by the President, serving a renewable 30-month term.

29 Mar 2025

The transitional government is formed as a presidential cabinet of 23 ministers without a Prime Minister.

13 Jun 2025

Decree No. 66 establishes the Higher Committee for People's Assembly Elections to design and administer the electoral process, setting the People's Assembly at 150 members, (with two thirds elected and one third appointed by the President).

20 Aug 2025

Following a round of community consultations conducted by the Higher Committee for the People's Assembly, Presidential Decree No.143 was issued, expanding the People's Assembly from 150 to 210 members and establishing a temporary electoral system that divides Syria into 60 electoral districts. Under this system, vetted electoral colleges elect 140 of the Assembly's 210 members.

23 Aug 2025

The Higher Committee for the People's Assembly Elections announces the postponement of Elections in Suwayda and DAANES-controlled areas of Raqqa and Hasakah for lack of a "safe environment."

21 Sept 2025

The Higher Committee for the People's Assembly Elections announces 5 October as the date of the People's Assembly Elections.

5 Oct 2025

Election day: electoral colleges elect 119 members, with voting postponed for 21 seats across several districts in Suwayda, Raqqa, Hasakah and Aleppo.

23 Oct 2025

A first round of by-elections fills seats in government-held parts of Raqqa and Hasakah (Ras al-Ayn and Tell Abyad).

17 Mar 2026

By-elections complete the remaining Raqqa districts (al-Raqa and al-Tabaqa).

24 May 2026

The final by-election round in Ayn al-Arab (Aleppo), Al Hasakah, Al-Malikiyah and Qamishli (Hassakah) brings elected membership to 137 of 140, leaving only the three Suwayda seats vacant.

1 Jul 2026

Decree No. 143 appoints the 70 members of the presidential third, including 15 women and appointees from all 14 governorates, completing the Assembly's formation.

8 Jul 2026

Decree No. 149: President Ahmed al-Sharaa issues a decree appointing the members of the Supreme Constitutional Court and outlining its responsibilities.

12 Jul 2026

The People's Assembly holds its inaugural session: 206 members take the constitutional oath and elect Abdul Hamid al-Awak as Speaker.

30 Jul 2026

The People's Assembly adopts its internal bylaws following five days of deliberations.

27 Aug 2026

Speaker Abdulhamid Akeel Al-Awwak issued Decision 109/2026 naming the members and leadership of the People's Assembly's 26 permanent committees.

Mid-September 2026

The Assembly accepted the resignation of Mudar Wafiq Hamdan, one of the 70 members appointed by Presidential Decree 143/2026, following a parliamentary inquiry and public controversy over alleged ties to the former regime.

THE FORMATION OF THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

AN EXPLANATORY GUIDE TO THE INTERIM ELECTION LAW

The members profiled in this guide were seated through a process that differs in fundamental respects from the parliamentary elections familiar in most systems. The following section sets out the rules that produced the current chamber and explains the terminology used throughout the guide.

WHAT IS THE COMPOSITION OF THE ASSEMBLY?

The People's Assembly comprises 210 members, seated through two distinct routes. Two-thirds of the chambers or one hundred and forty members, were indirectly elected, though by restricted panels of appointed voters at district level (named electoral colleges) rather than by the electorate at large. The remaining one third or seventy members were appointed directly by the President without any electoral step. The distinction between the two routes is recorded in each profile.

WHAT IS THE LEGAL BASIS FOR THE PROCESS?

Three instruments, each deriving its authority from the one preceding it. The Constitutional Declaration of 13 March 2025, which serves as the transitional charter, provided in Article 24 that the Assembly would not be directly elected, set that two-thirds would be indirectly elected and one-third presidentially appointed, and deferred the operational details to subsequent legislation. Presidential Decree 66/2025 of 16 June 2025 established the People's Assembly Election Committee, an eleven-member Higher Committee appointed by the President to organize and oversee the process, and fixed the chamber at 150 seats. Presidential Decree 143/2025 of 20 August 2025 constitutes the interim election law itself, setting out the rules described below and increasing the chamber to its final size of 210 seats.

WHY WAS THE NUMBER OF SEATS REVISED FROM 150 TO 210?

After issuing Decree 66, the Higher Committee convened town hall meetings across the governorates to consult on the process design. Suweida was excluded on security grounds, and the sessions for Ar-Raqqa and Al-Hasakah were held in Damascus rather than in the governorates themselves. Based on these consultations, the Committee recommended enlarging the chamber to ensure broader representation. The President adopted the recommendation in Decree 143, raising the total to 210 seats while preserving the constitutional division of two-thirds elected and one-third appointed.

WHAT DOES INDIRECT ELECTION MEAN IN THIS CONTEXT?

It means that the general public did not vote. Instead, the franchise was delegated to a restricted body of voters in each district, known as an electoral college. The process operated in three stages: the Higher Committee appointed a sub-committee in each district; each sub-committee compiled a list of "electoral college members" to serve as that district's electors; and those electors, once their names were approved, cast the votes determining the district's seats. The resulting national electorate numbered approximately 6,500 individuals (between thirty and fifty electors for each seat contested).

WHO WERE THE ELECTORS, AND HOW WERE THEY SELECTED?

The district sub-committees nominated them and the Higher Committee approved the final lists. The law divides electors into two categories, with a target ratio of approximately 70 percent "competencies", denoting holders of university qualifications, and 30 percent "notables", denoting figures of local standing recognized for social or community service. Eligibility required a minimum age of twenty-five; Syrian nationality held before 1 May 2011; registration or long-standing residence in the district; no record of membership or candidacy in the former Assembly after 2011, nor candidacy for the presidency, absent proven defection; no ministerial or gubernatorial office; no affiliation with the armed forces or security services; and commitment to the provisions of the Constitutional Declaration.

WHO WAS ELIGIBLE TO STAND AS A CANDIDATE?

Candidacy was confined to members of the electoral college. A candidate had to hold a place on their district's approved list of electors, so the pool of those eligible to stand was identical to the body entitled to vote. Candidates were further required to undertake not to hold other public office concurrently with an Assembly seat, subject to an exception for university faculty. The law provided no mechanism for a citizen outside the electoral college to seek candidacy.

WHAT IS THE BLOC VOTE, AND WHAT ARE ITS EFFECTS?

The bloc vote is the method by which the electors' votes were converted into seats, and it represents the most consequential technical provision in the law. Under this method, each elector casts as many votes as there are seats allocated to the district. In a three-seat district, for instance, each elector selects three candidates, and the three candidates receiving the most votes win.

Relevance to the profiles. The bloc vote operates on a winner-takes-all basis at district level. A grouping commanding a majority among a district's electors is capable of securing every seat in that district, while a substantial minority may secure none. Where the members returned by a given district share a common background or affiliation, the voting method may account for that pattern as much as the underlying local politics.

AN EXPLANATORY GUIDE TO THE INTERIM ELECTION LAW

CONSTITUTIONAL DECLARATION, 13 MARCH 2025; PRESIDENTIAL DECREE NO. 66/2025, 16 JUNE 2025; PRESIDENTIAL DECREE NO. 143/2025, 20 AUGUST 2025 AND ITS IMPLEMENTING INSTRUCTIONS; INTERNAL BYLAWS OF THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY.

HOW WERE DISTRICTS CONSTITUTED AND SEATS ALLOCATED?

Districts follow Syria's existing administrative divisions, producing sixty electoral districts across fourteen governorates, each returning between one and fourteen seats. The allocation of seats to districts was determined by reference to a 2011 decision of the Ministry of Local Administration, itself based on pre-war population figures. As those figures predate more than a decade of displacement, the distribution reflects the population as recorded in 2010 and 2011 rather than the present demographic reality.

WERE QUOTAS ESTABLISHED FOR WOMEN OR OTHER GROUPS?

None of a binding character. The law provides that women should constitute at least 20 percent of the electors, and that electoral colleges should also reflect displaced persons, the families of martyrs and casualties, persons with disabilities, and survivors of detention. Each of these provisions is qualified by the phrase "when possible," which renders them aspirational rather than mandatory. Two further considerations are relevant: the targets attach to the electors rather than to Assembly seats, such that their fulfillment would not determine the composition of the chamber itself; and no provision of any kind was made for young people or for Syrians residing abroad.

WHICH BODY ADMINISTERED THE PROCESS, AND WHAT REMEDIES WERE AVAILABLE?

The Higher Committee, comprising eleven presidential appointees, exercised overall authority, with district sub-committees operating under its supervision and requiring its approval for their decisions. Challenges were directed to appeals committees established in each governorate and composed of judges nominated by the Minister of Justice. Their jurisdiction extended to three matters only: the membership of the sub-committees, the final lists of electors, and the results within their districts. Complaints were to be lodged within three days and determined within five. The Higher Committee issued final results and transmitted them to the Presidency for approval.

WERE ALL 140 SEATS FILLED ON A SINGLE ELECTION DAY?

No. Polling was staggered across four rounds spanning nearly eight months, and the chamber remains incomplete. Ahead of the vote, the Higher Committee postponed the elections in As-Suweida and in the areas of Ar-Raqqa, Al-Hasakah and northern Aleppo, then outside government control, citing the absence of a safe environment. Election day on 5 October 2025 therefore returned only 119 of the 140 elected seats, with 21 seats deferred. A first round of by-elections on 23 October 2025 filled the seats in the government-held parts of Ar-Raqqa and Al-Hasakah, namely Ras al-Ayn and Tell Abyad. A second round on 17 March 2026 completed the remaining Ar-Raqqa districts of Ar-Raqqa and Al-Tabaqa. A final round on 24 May 2026 covered Ayn al-Arab in Aleppo together with Al-Hasakah, Al-Malikiyah and Qamishli in Al-Hasakah, bringing elected membership to 137 of 140. The three seats allocated to As-Suweida remain vacant, their elections still suspended, and they had yet to be filled at the time of this guide's production. The Assembly did not convene until the process had run its course: members returned in October 2025 waited some nine months before taking their seats at the inaugural session of 12 July 2026, at which the chamber stood at 206 of 210 members (the three As-Suweida seats remaining vacant, and one member from Idlib having died before he could take the constitutional oath, and one appointed member resigned after a public outcry accusing him of affiliation with the former regime.)

WAS THE PROCESS OPEN TO OBSERVATION?

Only to a limited degree, and not by citizen observers. The legal framework made no provision for domestic observation and assigned civil society no role in the electoral process. Article 34 permitted only candidates and their agents to remain in polling stations during voting, while Article 49 restricted access to voters, candidates, their agents, and journalists admitted at the discretion of the sub-committee chair. Provision for international observation was similarly narrow: Article 50 empowered the head of the Higher Committee to invite diplomatic missions and the offices of international and governmental organizations to view the conduct of the process, without conferring any right of access. In practice, the Higher Committee declined to authorize Syrian civil society organizations to undertake citizen observation. The monitoring function was instead entrusted to the Bar Association, which deployed legal observers to follow the process. The resulting arrangement placed observation in the hands of a single professional body designated by the authorities rather than an independent, plural observer community, and set a precedent that may shape the scope of observation in future electoral events.

WHAT IS THE DURATION OF THE ASSEMBLY'S MANDATE?

The term is set at thirty months and is renewable. It falls within a five-year transitional period intended to conclude with the adoption of a permanent constitution and the holding of elections. The Constitutional Declaration does not specify which authority determines renewal, whether any limit applies to the number of extensions, or the manner in which those future elections are to be organized. The internal bylaws of the People's Assembly granted the president the mandate to unilaterally extend the mandate of the assembly if organizing elections is not feasible due to "exceptional circumstances".

THE INTERNAL BYLAW OF THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

The People's Assembly adopted its internal bylaw on 30 July 2026. The bylaw is the instrument through which the Assembly governs itself: it establishes the leadership, the committee system, the calendar of sittings, the passage of legislation, and the rights and duties of members. This note explains it in question-and-answer form and measures it against two points of reference: the internal bylaw of 30 July 2017 that it replaced, and the draft circulated before the Assembly's own debate.

WHEN WAS THE BYLAW ADOPTED?

Article 29 of the Constitutional Declaration of 13 March 2025 required the Assembly to prepare its rules of procedure within one month of its first session. The Assembly first convened on 12 July 2026, debated a draft prepared by a committee of its members in open session over five sittings, and adopted the final text on 30 July 2026.

WHAT ARE THE OTHER HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW BYLAW?

The text is comprehensive and, in most of its architecture, conventional: a presiding Bureau, twenty-six standing committees, a legislative procedure running from initiative through committee to plenary vote, and chapters on immunity, discipline and membership. Five features distinguish it.

First, the Bureau, a body of four, holds concentrated power. It appoints every committee chair, deputy chair, and rapporteur; allocates members to committees; may re-form or merge committees; resolves jurisdictional disputes; and approves the plenary agenda.

Second, the quorum rules include a fallback the Assembly has never had before: if an opening quorum is not met, the sitting resumes after two hours with one third of the membership sufficient, including for law-making. An absolute majority of members (106 votes) is required for adopting the election law, political party law, judicial authority, State Council, Supreme Constitutional Court and transitional justice laws (Art. 122).

Third, protections for members moved in both directions at once. Lifting immunity now requires two-thirds of the membership rather than an absolute majority, and the grounds for losing a seat are exhaustive, with defence guarantees. At the same time, the bylaw retains prohibitions on what members may say, including advocating secession or partition under any name and conducting external relations harmful to the state, and makes their breach a ground for forfeiture of the seat.

Fourth, the chamber's channels outward narrowed. The standing committee for citizens' complaints was abolished, committee sittings are closed by default, and no committee carries a foreign-policy mandate.

Fifth, several oversight mechanisms present in the 2017 text do not appear: there is no procedure for scrutinizing legislative decrees, no procedure for examining the substance of treaties, and no confidence mechanism, the last being a consequence of the Constitutional Declaration's design rather than of the bylaw itself.

HOW IS THE BUREAU FORMED?

The Bureau consists of four posts: the Speaker, two Deputy Speakers and a Secretary (Art. 24). Each was filled by a separate ballot of the plenary at the Assembly's first sitting on 12 July 2026.

The Bureau meets in private. Its quorum is an absolute majority of its members, and it decides by a majority of those attending, with the Speaker holding a casting vote (Art. 28). In a body of four, three attending means two members carry a decision. A Bureau member may be removed on the proposal of one third of the Assembly's members, decided by two thirds of the membership (Art. 16).

HOW MANY COMMITTEES ARE THERE, AND WHAT ARE THEY?

Twenty-six standing committees, each of between seven and seventeen members, listed with their mandates at Articles 34 to 59 and set out in full at the end of this Q&A. The mandates are drawn in legislative terms: almost every committee is defined by the draft laws it examines in a given ministerial field. The Constitutional and Legislative Affairs Committee (Art. 34) holds a distinctive position, reviewing the constitutionality and drafting of texts across the Assembly's whole business, handling membership and immunity matters, and owning any future amendment of the bylaw.

HOW ARE COMMITTEES FORMED?

Each member submits a ranked list of preferred committees to the Bureau. The Bureau allocates members, decides where a committee is oversubscribed, and may assign a member to a committee (Art. 31). The Bureau appoints every committee chair, deputy chair and rapporteur, and may re-form, merge or dissolve committees and vary their mandates (Art. 29).
This is the point of sharpest contrast with both the predecessor text and regional practice. Under the 2017 bylaw the Bureau's proposed distribution went to the plenary for approval, a rejected committee was elected, and committees elected their own officers by absolute majority within ten days of formation.

WHAT IS THE QUORUM, AND WHAT HAPPENS WHEN IT IS NOT MET?

A sitting opens with an absolute majority of the Assembly's membership present (106 of 210 members) (Art. 88(2)). Where the quorum is not met, the sitting is postponed for two hours and then proceeds validly with one-third of the membership (70 members) present (Art. 88(3)), with no carve-out for legislation. An absolute majority of members however (106 votes) is required for adopting the election law, political party law, judicial authority, State Council, Supreme Constitutional Court and transitional justice laws (Art. 122)

The 2017 text had no fall-back for the plenary at all: the Speaker delayed opening by half an hour and then adjourned to another date. A reduced quorum of one-third existed in 2017 only for committee meetings, in urgent matters, after a same-day postponement.

HOW ARE DRAFT LAWS DECIDED?

A draft law or legislative proposal is referred to the competent committee, which reports to the plenary; the plenary debates and votes. Legislative proposals may now be initiated by seventeen members or by any standing committee, alongside bills submitted by the executive.

Three voting thresholds apply. Ordinary decisions of the Assembly are taken by a majority of the members present (Art. 121). Laws are passed by a majority of those present, provided the votes in favour are not fewer than one third (Art. 122). Basic laws, those governing elections, political parties, the judicial authority, the State Council, the Supreme Constitutional Court and transitional justice, require an absolute majority of the full membership, 106 votes. Transitional justice replaced local administration on that list; the remainder is carried over from 2017. Amendment of the Constitutional Declaration requires two-thirds of the membership, 140 votes (Art. 159).

HOW DOES THE BYLAW COMPARE WITH THE 2017 BYLAW IT REPLACED?

The two texts share more architecture than the political rupture between them might suggest. For example, the voting structure for legislation is carried over almost verbatim. The style of committee mandates, each defined by the ministry whose bills it examines, is the same. The urgent-amendment shortcut is identical.

The departures cluster in four places. The Bureau shrank from six posts to four, and committee formation moved from the plenary to the bureau: under the 2017 text, the plenary approved the allocation of members to committees, an unapproved committee was elected, and every committee elected its own officers.

The fall-back quorum is new; the 2017 text never lowered the bar for a plenary sitting. The chamber's outward and oversight machinery was removed: the 2017 procedures for scrutinizing legislative decrees, examining treaties, withdrawing confidence from ministers, and receiving citizens' petitions with a thirty-day ministerial response deadline have no counterpart.

Control over the Assembly's term changed: the 2017 text allowed extension only by a law the Assembly itself passed in wartime, whereas the current arrangement places extension in exceptional circumstances with the presidency.

Members' individual protections are the counter-current: the immunity threshold is higher than in 2017, and forfeiture is more tightly bounded subject to the speech-rules exception discussed above.

THE BUREAU FORMATION

How was the Bureau formed, and who was elected to its leadership?

- The People's Assembly held its first session on Sunday, 12 July 2026.
- President Ahmed al-Sharaa and several ministers, including Foreign Minister Asaad al-Shaibani and Interior Minister Anas Khattab, attended the session, which the Chair of the Higher Committee for People's Assembly Elections, Mohammad Taha al-Ahmad, opened. Members took a collective constitutional oath in the President's presence.
- Of the Assembly's 210 members, 206 attended. Instead of electing the speaker by a majority rule (as per the constitutional declaration), the assembly adopted a plurality rule.
- Election of the Speaker: Dr. Abdul Hamid Akil al-Awak was elected Speaker with 99 votes, ahead of Muayyad al-Qablawi (75 votes) and Mohammad Ramez Kourj (31 votes), out of the 206 members present (205 valid ballots plus one blank).
- Al-Awak, born in 1966 in Hasakah governorate, holds a law degree from Aleppo University (1990), a master's in administrative law from the Islamic University in Beirut (2009), and a doctorate in constitutional law from Beirut Arab University. He is a member of the Constitutional Declaration drafting committee and an assistant professor at Mardin Artuklu University in Turkey since 2016, in addition to lecturing at al-Furat University's law faculty. He entered the Assembly via the President's 70-name appointed list.
- Election of the Deputy Speakers: From a field of nine candidates, Mustafa Musa was elected First Deputy Speaker with 122 votes, and Madonna Bashara was elected Second Deputy Speaker with 67 votes. Musa, a pharmacist from Idlib governorate, previously chaired the Salvation Government's General Shura Council; Bashara holds a doctorate in civil engineering and teaches at Tishreen University in Latakia.
- Election of the Secretary: Muayyad Habib was elected Assembly Secretary with 87 votes from a field of six candidates. Habib was elected MP for Darayya (Rural Damrelations), has a degree in political science and international relations, and co-founded the Muqarabat Center for Political Development. Other candidates included Abdul Karim Barakat (47), Yasser Shahadeh (26), Omar Gharibo (23), Jaafar al-Sadiq Tahhan (11), and Aisha al-Hussein (11), and one ballot was blank.

07. SYRIAN PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY 2026

Bases: 210 statutory seats · 136 elected seats · 69 appointed seats · 205 seats in total. Every table states its own base. Although 137 members have been elected and 70 appointed, the statistics below are calculated on the basis of 136 elected and 69 appointed seats. This is because one elected member passed away before being seated, and one appointed member resigned after a public outcry accusing him of affiliation with the former regime.
